Ives Says Democrat Win Would Bring Tax Burden

Four persons were reported injured when the sedan and the truck, above, collided head-on on the Thruway near New Paltz at 6:25 a. m. today. State police of the Thruway patrol accused the truck driver of going north in the southbound lane of the dual highway.

Four Are Injured Near New Paltz

Four persons were injured early today in a collision on the thruway in the town of New Paltz.

State police of the thruway patrol said a sedan was struck head-on in the southbound lane by a northbound stake truck about 6:25 a. m. today.

The injured were taken to Vassar Brothers Hospital in Poughkeepsie, where all were reported in "fairly good" condition at noon today. They were listed on the state police report as:

Joseph Occhialino, 33, of 39 Austin avenue, Albany, who was owner and operator of the sedan. He suffered fractures of both legs, a cut on the left eye and possible internal injuries.

MANUEL VIEIRO, 54, of Newburgh, driver of the stake truck owned by Galloway's Garage of Newburgh. His injuries were listed as fractured left wrist, injuries to both knees and other injuries.

Pareene and Bucci were passengers in the Occhialino car, police said.

Troopers said Vieiro will be arrested on a reckless driving charge upon his discharge from the hospital. They charged he was driving north in the eastern part of the southbound lane, and swerved into the western part of the lane to avoid a truck. In so doing, the troopers said, his truck crashed head-on into the southbound Occhialino automobile.

Union Center Boy Shot in Ankle

The shooting of a Union Center boy, 18, in the ankle was among the Halloween incidents reported to the sheriff's office over the weekend.

Harry Litts was taken to Kingston Hospital about 9:30 p. m. Saturday by a passing motorist, Russell Merrihew, the sheriff's office was informed. Litts suffered a gunshot wound in his right ankle, according to the report. His condition was listed as "good" at the hospital today.

Circumstances of the shooting which occurred at Union Center, are under investigation.

OTHER HALLOWEEN incidents investigated apparently involved mostly attempts to interfere with traffic flow on area highways, and very little property damage was reported.

At 8:45 p. m. Sunday a group of teenage boys in the Maple Hill area had changed highway signs about and were directing traffic up a dead-end road at the place where Route 32 crosses the Thruway, according to reports. The boys were using large red flags to mis-direct traffic, according to one complaint received. Deputies were dispatched to break up the pranksters and get traffic flowing normally.

OBJECTS OF VARIOUS sorts placed in the highways were the subjects of other complaints received Saturday night. Fence rails were reported in various roads in Hurley, and along the road between Lucas avenue and Hurley; a railroad tie was reported standing "on end" in the center of Route 9W at Port Ewen; other objects including bicycle racks and a schoolyard swing were across roads in several locations.

Even nature joined in the pranks, according to one report. At 1:25 a. m. Sunday, Donald Beaumont of Glenerie Lake reported a rock slide on Route 28 between West Hurley and the Maverick road. The highway was cleared without difficulty.

Thruway Traffic Reported Heavy

The Utica-Newburgh section of the New York State Thruway drew heavy traffic on its first weekend of through travel, but observers said the run of trucks was not as heavy as expected.

Northbound traffic was heavy Friday and Saturday and the flow southward was steady yesterday afternoon and early evening.

THE TOLL BOOTH near Newburgh, and travel over 17K at its intersection with the thruway outlet, slowed traffic there yesterday afternoon, and some delays were experienced at the Route 28 interchange due to rough traveling over the unfinished overpass.

Shoulders are still unfinished along many sections of the route, and work is still to be done on access roads, bridges and in interchange areas.

A. R. ERSKINE, thruway engineer, stationed at Poughkeepsie, said the contractor is hopeful of moving out of the Kingston area in about a week, and that work was progressing on finishing less than a mile of paving south of the interchange in the Newburgh area. This would

4 Killed on Thruway In Crashes

State Death Toll Eight on Weekend

Utica, Nov. 1 (AP)—Four persons were killed and a fifth injured critically in two separate accidents on the New York State Thruway early today. The victims included three members of a Boston, Mass., family whose automobile police said struck a pillar of an overhead bridge near Verona, about five miles west of here.

The fourth victim, identified by a coroner as James R. Dunne, 27, West New York, N. J., was killed in a two-car collision at an interchange outside Albany—on a new thruway section first opened to toll traffic last Tuesday. Dunne had been boarding in Albany.

AN AMBULANCE service identified the victims in the Utica crash as the driver, Charles G. Williams, 52; his wife, Esther S. Williams, about 40, and their son, Michael, all of Boston.

Two other Williams' children were hospitalized here. They are Fendell, 16, in critical condition, and Sheila, 6, in less serious condition.

Today's four deaths bring to five the total number of persons killed on the thruway since the first section was opened to toll traffic June 24.

J. Gregory Nealon, coroner, said the victim in the Albany crash was a man about 26 who was driving an auto owned by Procter and Gamble of New York city. Nealon said the man's car collided with one operated by Jennings Stiff, 34, of Schenec-

State Areas Are Battling Snow

Jamestown, Nov. 1 (AP)—Cold winds moving across the warmer waters of Lake Erie carried snow to wide stretches of western New York today keeping snow plows and sanders busy throughout the area.

A snow blanket three to 10 inches deep lay over a wide portion of this area of the state following squalls that began Saturday and continued today.

200 Planes, 25 Ships in Ocean Hunt

Navy Air Carrier Missing With 42

New York, Nov. 1 (AP) — The navy threw 200 planes and 25 surface craft into a wide-ranging search today for a big navy transport aircraft missing over the Atlantic with 42 persons aboard. It had not been heard from since late Saturday on a flight from Maryland to Africa via the Azores.

Planes from England, the European continent, North Africa and the United States joined in a needle-in-the-ocean hunt. They swept back and forth across a 120-mile band, on the great circle route from the Jersey coast to the Azores.

THE WEATHER BUREAU in New York said water temperatures in the search area ranged from the mid-50s up. To the south the sky was clear, but in the northern, cooler parts of the ribbon of ocean there were thunderstorms today.

The missing plane carried 21 passengers, including two women, wives of U. S. officers, and five children. There were 21 crewmen aboard because the big ship was carrying a complete crew to the Azores to pick up another plane.

The four-engine Lockheed super-Constellation was last heard from at 11 p. m. Saturday, two hours after it had taken off from Patuxent River Naval Air Station, Md. At the time it was 300 miles at sea.

THE ILL-FATED flight was the second attempt made by those aboard to get to the Azores and Port Lyautey in Africa. The navy said they had taken off earlier Saturday in another plane but had to turn back 2½ hours later when trouble developed. They transferred to the now missing plane and started out again.

A vast navy and coast guard search for the plane started early yesterday after shore bases failed to receive the regular hourly flight report. The operation is being directed from headquarters of the Eastern Sea Frontier in New York.

NAVY OFFICIALS said the plane had only enough fuel to stay in the air until 10 a. m. (EST) yesterday. By evening

President, Stevenson Appeal for Heavy Voting

Republicans Are Fighting Doggedly; Democrats Feel Victory Is Ahead

Washington, Nov. 1 (AP)—Controls of Congress appeared to be hanging in a narrow balance today as President Eisenhower and Adlai E. Stevens prepared to wind up a blistering campaign with appeals for the voters to turn out in force tomorrow.

Republicans were regarded nationally as fighting an uphill battle to retain their present slender control of the Senate and House. Democrats jubilantly were claiming they would sweep both into camp and take over up to a half dozen GOP governorships.

But there remained an air of uncertainty about all of the pre-balloting forecasts. It was generated by disputes over the effectiveness of strenuous last-minute campaigning by Eisenhower and the depth of penetration of what the Democrats called "Red smear" charges against some of their candidates.

FROM THE WHITE HOUSE (9 p. m., EST) Eisenhower beams a television (CBS) and radio (Mutual-ABC) appeal to the voters to march to the polls. He is to be joined by Vice President Nixon, cast by the Democrats in the role of chief campaign author of the Communist-in-government issue. Nixon speaks from Denver. For the west coast, the program will be rebroadcast three hours later (9 p. m., PST).

Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic presidential nominee, who has accused Eisenhower of joining in a GOP chorus on the issue of domestic communism, speaks by radio (CBS) from Chicago (10:15 p. m., EST).

Democrats busied themselves with what National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell called a "walkathon" in an effort to counter the "10 times 10" telephone drive initiated by Eisenhower Saturday.

Democrats were urged to walk to the homes of 10 neighbors and ask them to vote. Republicans were asked to telephone 10 friends and urge them to go to the polls. There was no accurate

Officer Is Held While Probe Made

Charges Say He Abused Recruits

CHARLES C. ANDERSON

Augusta, Ga., Nov. 1 (AP)—A young officer was under house arrest at Camp Gordon today awaiting outcome of a pre-trial investigation into charges he ordered recruits to hang a fellow trainee by the feet from a tree limb.

Third army headquarters also charged in a statement that 2nd Lt. Charles C. Anderson, 24, formerly of St. Louis, Mo., forced recruits to take sand baths, do exhausting physical exercises and shout an obscene phrase from a tree top.

The 5 foot 10 officer, described as slim, soft-spoken and "on the handsome side," served as a master sergeant in the Far East and won two battle stars in Korea.

He was on his first assignment as an officer, in command of Company A, First Infantry Training Regiment, when the army charges he forced recruits to undergo "harrassing and humiliating" treatment.

Anderson declined comment except to assert: "I will have something to say when the trial begins." He referred other questions to his counsel, Maj. W. B. Carne, who also declined to discuss the case.

Third army headquarters said that after the pre-trial investigation is completed the commanding general at Camp Gordon would determine the action to be taken to including "trial by court martial if warranted."

Details of the case were released Saturday.

Voters, Use Your Topcoats

Washington, Nov. 1 (AP)—Voters, keep your topcoats handy—the forecaster says Tuesday's weather will be "like early winter" almost everywhere.

A weather bureau spokesman said a cold air mass from Canada is sending thermometers down but leaving sunny skies in most parts of the country. Maybe some snow flurries in northern spots.

No big storms are in sight, he said. Then he remembered an "if."

"The way the weather's been the last week," he said, "we probably couldn't tell about such a storm until about six hours beforehand."

Brothers Seized After Area Thefts

Two Newburgh brothers were captured late Saturday afternoon at gunpoint by a state trooper from the New Windsor station as they fled south after allegedly holding up two gasoline stations in Ulster county for a total of $56, state police reported.

The suspects were identified by troopers as Richard Murray Goggin, 19, of North Plank road, town of Newburgh, and his brother, Walter Frederick Goggin, 22, of 199 South street, Newburgh. They were turned over to troopers of the Middletown station and committed to the Orange county jail on first degree robbery charges placed after troopers claimed they admitted a robbery last Tuesday at Bullville.

THE TWO Ulster county robberies allegedly occurred Saturday evening. The first was reported at 5:25 p. m. by Harold Harp, attendant at an Amoco station on Route 209 at Napanoch.

Harp told troopers of the Ellenville station that two unknown men held him up and took $26. He was unable to furnish a description.

Minutes later, Ellenville troopers were notified that two men had held up the gasoline station owned and operated by Vincent Yancar on Route 52 near Pine Bush, taking $30.

Mrs. Yancar was able to furnish troopers with the license number of the automobile in which the two men fled down Route 52 toward Newburgh.

AN ALERT was immediately spread by troopers and the getaway car was stopped at gunpoint at the intersection of Route 52 and Union avenue near Newburgh by Trooper D. M. Bender of the New Windsor station. Assistance was rushed

Starts Long Marathon As Finale

Harriman Swings To Upstate Cities

New York, Nov. 1 (AP)—Sen. Irving M. Ives began an 18-hour radio-TV marathon shortly before dawn today.

For at least 15 minutes of every hour until midnight, the gubernatorial candidate and other Republicans will answer questions from telephone callers.

The broadcast, originating from WABC here, began at 6 a. m.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, who employed a similar tactic in 1950, was scheduled to appear for Ives today.

ALSO TO APPEAR were Ives' running mates J. Raymond McGovern, candidate for lieutenant governor, Frank De Vecchio, comptroller, and Jacob K. Javits, attorney general.

The program will be carried at various times on a number of radio stations, five TV stations in New York city, and nine TV stations in Buffalo, Rochester, Utica, Albany, Binghamton and Kingston.

The program began with Ives receiving a telephone call from a Queens resident who had complaints about rising taxes.

THE SENATOR, who was seated at a desk and smoking a pipe, told the caller, Jerome Blakeman, of 116-15 232nd Cambria Heights, that the the "tax question is one of the most serious" issues in the campaign.

If his Democratic-Liberal opponent, Averell Harriman, were elected, he said, "it will make it almost impossible to live in New York."

Ives said Harriman's proposed program would more than double the state budget, and added: "It will mean a sales tax and other taxes amounting to billions of dollars."

THERE WERE 20 telephone girls on hand to take calls from persons with questions for the senator.

Ives said in a statement earlier today that "no one is fooled" by Harriman's "last-minute, panicky attempt to disassociate himself from the Tammany-Democrat plan to reduce state financial aid for upstate schools."

Ives said his opponent's "hastily arranged upstate trip today is the desperate move of a candidate who realizes that he is facing defeat."

"The Tammany-Democrat high command for months has stood publicly committed to a revision of the state aid formula that would destroy the equalization principle enacted under Gov. Alfred E. Smith," Ives said.

"ITS EFFECT would be to injure 3,000 upstate school districts.

"Equalization of state aid for education means that every child in the state can get a decent education regardless whether his home community is rich or poor.

"The New York city program calls for substitution of a flat grant per pupil. This would mean that the wealthy communities would get just as much state aid per pupil as the poor communities . . ."

IVES SAID "the Tammany plan would mean an annual reduction of state aid for schools by these amounts for school districts in the very counties Harriman is visiting today":

Broome, $837,000; Erie, $1,305,000; Monroe, $707,000; Onondaga, $1,435,000; Oneida, $1,012,000; Albany, $383,00.

Ives continued that "the Tammany-Democrat scheme also would result in the reduction of state aid for schools by these amounts for the cities of":

Binghamton, $232,000; Elmira, $217,000; Cortland, $93,600; Hornell, $128,000; Olean, $104,000; Jamestown, $82,000; Ithaca, $75,-

Four Men Set Off Bard College Blast

Red Hook, Nov. 1 (AP)—Four young men, accused of setting off a dynamite detonating cap in a men's dormitory at Bard College, were under bail today on charges of careless use of explosives.

The four were identified by state police as Maurice Mickle, 23, of Rhinebeck; Kenneth Halvorsen, 24, of Red Hook, a graduate of New York University; Laurence Vitzthun, 22 and Robert Cole, 23, both of Red Hook.

State police gave this account: The four were drinking in a Red Hook tavern Saturday night and decided to "make some noise," according to one of the quartet.

THEY OBTAINED several sticks of dynamite and detonating caps, and drove early yesterday to the coeducational college at Annandale.

Two of them took a stick of dynamite and placed it in a corner of a first-floor corridor of Seymour Hall, a men's dormi-

Tallamy Says Flatly Thruway Stays Open

Albany, Nov. 1 (AP)—The chairman of the State Thruway Authority says Democratic reports that the Thruway will be closed Wednesday in order to complete construction are "absolutely false."

Bertram D. Tallamy also labeled as "not true" what he said was an implication by Averell Harriman that the Authority had rushed opening of the superhighway by lowering construction standards.

Harriman, the Democratic-Liberal nominee, in a New York speech Saturday said he had heard that "next Wednesday, the day after election, they are going to close the Thruway again so they can really finish the work."

Tallamy asserted that Mr. Harriman's statement that the Thruway will be closed the day after election is absolutely false. Those sections of the Thruway which have been opened to traffic will remain open."

LET IT SNOW—All seems snug in this Bemus Point home, but it would seem good advice to keep the snow shovel close at hand. The Weather Bureau reported up to six inches of snow fell overnight Sunday in the town and other sections of southwestern New York—the first measurable fall of the season. (AP Wirephoto).

Clergymen Are Not Pleased With Governor's Answer

Piermont, Nov. 1 (AP) — Five clergymen, who rang church bells in protest against a thruway link which they claim will destroy their villages, have an answer from Gov. Dewey but say they are not satisfied.

In a letter which the five read from their pulpits yesterday, one week after the bell-ringing, the governor denied that definite plans have yet been made for the thruway extension. He said partisan politicians were to blame for spreading reports that it has been fixed and will definitely destroy the villages of lower Grandview, Piermont and Sparkill.

Dewey said when a decision is reached, residents will be given a hearing.

The clergymen, in a joint telegram, replied, "we are disappointed that your letter did not dispel the anxiety that hangs over us by a forthright declaration that this route has been abandoned."

The clergymen said that Dewey's statement about partisan politicians was "as unfair to us as it is to our people, who are patriotic Americans and both Republicans and Democrats."

The five clergymen are the Rev. Albert Ohse, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Sparkill; the Rev. John A. McManus, pastor of St. John's Roman Catholic Church, Piermont; the Rev. Dr. William V. Berg, of the Reformed Church, Piermont; the Rev. S. N. Dunbar of the African Methodist Episcopal Church of Zion, Piermont, anr the Rev. William T. Ingram of the Macedonian Baptist Church, Piermont.

Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic presidential nominee, who has accused Eisenhower of joining in a GOP chorus on the issue of domestic communism, speaks by radio (CBS) from Chicago (10:15 p. m., EST).

Democrats busied themselves with what National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell called a "walkathon" in an effort to counter the "10 times 10" telephone drive initiated by Eisenhower Saturday.

Democrats were urged to walk to the homes of 10 neighbors and ask them to vote. Republicans were asked to telephone 10 friends and urge them to go to the polls. There was no accurate

Officer Is Held While Probe Made

Charges Say He Abused Recruits

CHARLES C. ANDERSON

Augusta, Ga., Nov. 1 (AP)—A young officer was under house arrest at Camp Gordon today awaiting outcome of a pre-trial investigation into charges he ordered recruits to hang a fellow trainee by the feet from a tree limb.

Third army headquarters also charged in a statement that 2nd Lt. Charles C. Anderson, 24, formerly of St. Louis, Mo., forced recruits to take sand baths, do exhausting physical exercises and shout an obscene phrase from a tree top.

The 5 foot 10 officer, described as slim, soft-spoken and "on the handsome side," served as a master sergeant in the Far East and won two battle stars in Korea.

He was on his first assignment as an officer, in command of Company A, First Infantry Training Regiment, when the army charges he forced recruits to undergo "harrassing and humiliating" treatment.

Anderson declined comment except to assert: "I will have something to say when the trial begins." He referred other questions to his counsel, Maj. W. B. Carne, who also declined to discuss the case.

Third army headquarters said that after the pre-trial investigation is completed the commanding general at Camp Gordon would determine the action to be taken to including "trial by court martial if warranted."

Details of the case were released Saturday.

Voters, Use Your Topcoats

Washington, Nov. 1 (AP)—Voters, keep your topcoats handy—the forecaster says Tuesday's weather will be "like early winter" almost everywhere.

A weather bureau spokesman said a cold air mass from Canada is sending thermometers down but leaving sunny skies in most parts of the country. Maybe some snow flurries in northern spots.

No big storms are in sight, he said. Then he remembered an "if."

"The way the weather's been the last week," he said, "we probably couldn't tell about such a storm until about six hours beforehand."

Brothers Seized After Area Thefts

Two Newburgh brothers were captured late Saturday afternoon at gunpoint by a state trooper from the New Windsor station as they fled south after allegedly holding up two gasoline stations in Ulster county for a total of $56, state police reported.

The suspects were identified by troopers as Richard Murray Goggin, 19, of North Plank road, town of Newburgh, and his brother, Walter Frederick Goggin, 22, of 199 South street, Newburgh. They were turned over to troopers of the Middletown station and committed to the Orange county jail on first degree robbery charges placed after troopers claimed they admitted a robbery last Tuesday at Bullville.

THE TWO Ulster county robberies allegedly occurred Saturday evening. The first was reported at 5:25 p. m. by Harold Harp, attendant at an Amoco station on Route 209 at Napanoch.

Harp told troopers of the Ellenville station that two unknown men held him up and took $26. He was unable to furnish a description.

Minutes later, Ellenville troopers were notified that two men had held up the gasoline station owned and operated by Vincent Yancar on Route 52 near Pine Bush, taking $30.

Mrs. Yancar was able to furnish troopers with the license number of the automobile in which the two men fled down Route 52 toward Newburgh.

AN ALERT was immediately spread by troopers and the getaway car was stopped at gunpoint at the intersection of Route 52 and Union avenue near Newburgh by Trooper D. M. Bender of the New Windsor station. Assistance was rushed

Red Hook, Nov. 1 (AP)—Four young men, accused of setting off a dynamite detonating cap in a men's dormitory at Bard College, were under bail today on charges of careless use of explosives.

The four were identified by state police as Maurice Mickle, 23, of Rhinebeck; Kenneth Halvorsen, 24, of Red Hook, a graduate of New York University; Laurence Vitzthun, 22 and Robert Cole, 23, both of Red Hook.

State police gave this account:

The four were drinking in a Red Hook tavern Saturday night and decided to "make some noise," according to one of the quartet.

THEY OBTAINED several sticks of dynamite and detonating caps, and drove early yesterday to the coeducational college at Annandale.

Two of them took a stick of dynamite and placed it in a corner of a first-floor corridor of Seymour Hall, a men's dormi-

Starts Long Marathon As Finale

Harriman Swings To Upstate Cities

New York, Nov. 1 (AP)—Sen. Irving M. Ives began an 18-hour radio-TV marathon shortly before dawn today.

For at least 15 minutes of every hour until midnight, the gubernatorial candidate and other Republicans will answer questions from telephone callers.

The broadcast, originating from WABC here, began at 6 a. m.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, who employed a similar tactic in 1950, was scheduled to appear for Ives today.

ALSO TO APPEAR were Ives' running mates J. Raymond McGovern, candidate for lieutenant governor, Frank De Vecchio, comptroller, and Jacob K. Javits, attorney general.

The program will be carried at various times on a number of radio stations, five TV stations in New York city, and nine TV stations in Buffalo, Rochester, Utica, Albany, Binghamton and Kingston.

The program began with Ives receiving a telephone call from a Queens resident who had complaints about rising taxes.

THE SENATOR, who was seated at a desk and smoking a pipe, told the caller, Jerome Blakeman, of 116-15 232nd Cambria Heights, that the the "tax question is one of the most serious" issues in the campaign.

If his Democratic-Liberal opponent, Averell Harriman, were elected, he said, "it will make it almost impossible to live in New York."

Ives said Harriman's proposed program would more than double the state budget, and added: "It will mean a sales tax and other taxes amounting to billions of dollars."

THERE WERE 20 telephone girls on hand to take calls from persons with questions for the senator.

Ives said in a statement earlier today that "no one is fooled" by Harriman's "last-minute, panicky attempt to disassociate himself from the Tammany-Democrat plan to reduce state financial aid for upstate schools."

Ives said his opponent's "hastily arranged upstate trip today is the desperate move of a candidate who realizes that he is facing defeat."

"The Tammany-Democrat high command for months has stood publicly committed to a revision of the state aid formula that would destroy the equalization principle enacted under Gov. Alfred E. Smith," Ives said.

"ITS EFFECT would be to injure 3,000 upstate school districts.

"Equalization of state aid for education means that every child in the state can get a decent education regardless whether his home community is rich or poor.

"The New York city program calls for substitution of a flat grant per pupil. This would mean that the wealthy communities would get just as much state aid per pupil as the poor communities . . ."

IVES SAID "the Tammany plan would mean an annual reduction of state aid for schools by these amounts for school districts in the very counties Harriman is visiting today":

Broome, $837,000; Erie, $1,305,000; Monroe, $707,000; Onondaga, $1,435,000; Oneida, $1,012,000; Albany, $383,00.

Ives continued that "the Tammany-Democrat scheme also would result in the reduction of state aid for schools by these amounts for the cities of":

Binghamton, $232,000; Elmira, $217,000; Cortland, $93,600; Hornell, $128,000; Olean, $104,000; Jamestown, $82,000; Ithaca, $75,-

Tallamy Says Flatly Thruway Stays Open

Albany, Nov. 1 (AP)—The chairman of the State Thruway Authority says Democratic reports that the Thruway will be closed Wednesday in order to complete construction are "absolutely false."

Bertram D. Tallamy also labeled as "not true" what he said was an implication by Averell Harriman that the Authority had rushed opening of the superhighway by lowering construction standards.

Harriman, the Democratic-Liberal nominee, in a New York speech Saturday said he had heard that "next Wednesday, the day after election, they are going to close the Thruway again so they can really finish the work."

Tallamy asserted that Mr. Harriman's statement that the Thruway will be closed the day after election is absolutely false. Those sections of the Thruway which have been opened to traffic will remain open."

LET IT SNOW—All seems snug in this Bemus Point home, but it would seem good advice to keep the snow shovel close at hand. The Weather Bureau reported up to six inches of snow fell overnight Sunday in the town and other sections of southwestern New York—the first measurable fall of the season. (AP Wirephoto).

Clergymen Are Not Pleased With Governor's Answer

Piermont, Nov. 1 (AP) — Five clergymen, who rang church bells in protest against a thruway link which they claim will destroy their villages, have an answer from Gov. Dewey but say they are not satisfied.

In a letter which the five read from their pulpits yesterday, one week after the bell-ringing, the governor denied that definite plans have yet been made for the thruway extension. He said partisan politicians were to blame for spreading reports that it has been fixed and will definitely destroy the villages of lower Grandview, Piermont and Sparkill.

Dewey said when a decision is reached, residents will be given a hearing.

The clergymen, in a joint telegram, replied, "we are disappointed that your letter did not dispel the anxiety that hangs over us by a forthright declaration that this route has been abandoned."

The clergymen said that Dewey's statement about partisan politicians was "as unfair to us as it is to our people, who are patriotic Americans and both Republicans and Democrats."

The five clergymen are the Rev. Albert Ohse, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Sparkill; the Rev. John A. McManus, pastor of St. John's Roman Catholic Church, Piermont; the Rev. Dr. William V. Berg, of the Reformed Church, Piermont; the Rev. S. N. Dunbar of the African Methodist Episcopal Church of Zion, Piermont, anr the Rev. William T. Ingram of the Macedonian Baptist Church, Piermont.

Spada Is Injured In Shokan Crash

Michael R. Spada of Glasco was admitted to the Kingston Hospital Sunday afternoon for observation following injuries suffered in an accident at Shokan when his car and that of Reginald David Steers, 55, of 122 Marron Road Ontario, Canada, were in collision on Route 28 at Shokan. At the hospital Spada's condition was reported good and he was expected to leave the hospital later today.

Corporal Ray Dunn of Phoenicia reported Steers was driving a 1951 Cadillac car east at about 40 miles an hour when he pulled to the left to pass another car. Spada, operating his Oldsmobile car east, pulled to the shoulder when he saw the Steers car approaching and, Dunn said, Steers pulled over too and the car collided almost head on.

Steers was arrested on a reckless driving charge and before Justice of the Peace Frank Carle he paid a $25 fine. The accident happened about 4:10 p. m.

Workers Clean Out Thruway Ditches

Thruway workers were called out Sunday morning to clean out ditches along the Thruway in the area near Tillson where clay slides had been experienced during construction.

John Arborio, the contractor, told The Freeman this morning that the action was a "precautionary measure" ordered because of the heavy rains of Friday and Saturday.

Men and equipment were dispatched to stand by in the event that the clay in the rain drenched bank broke loose, but actually "there was no movement of clay," he said. The ditches, designed to help keep any decending clay from pouring onto the highway, were dredged out, also as a precautionary measure, he said.

Brooklyn Man Is Shot in Arm

William Donellan, 26, of Brooklyn, was accidentally shot in the upper right arm while he and three companions were hunting squirrels in the town of Shawangunk Saturday afternoon, state police of Ellenville reported.

The wound was not serious, and Donellan was released after treatment by a Pine Bush physician, troopers said. The accident occurred about 12:30 p. m. as Donellan was hunting with Carl DeSilva, William Weidcamp and Norman Hamilton, soldiers stationed at Governors Island, troopers said. The .22 calibre which pierced Donellan's arm came from a rifle which DeSilva fired when he observed a movement which he thought to have been a squirrel about 100 yards away, according to the state police report.

Mischief Slight During Halloween Observance Here

Halloween was observed in the city and county with fewer reports of mischief than in many a past year.

Both city and state police reported only a few incidents requiring police attention and property damage was generally light.

Only two false alarms were sounded in Kingston as compared to dozens in other years, and the patrolling of alarm boxes and neighborhoods by volunteer firemen effectively reduced that mischief.

COMMUNITY PARTIES. in Kingston and many other places in the county also helped reduce the usual run of pranks, and general reports indicated that more parents were out with the younger children than in past years.

Saturday's rain had wet down the leaves along streets to the extent that not one fire was reported in piles of leaves in the city and local police had only a half dozen calls reporting other mischief.

A false alarm was sounded at 9:50 p. m., Saturday at Roosevelt avenue and Savoy street, and another at 1:40 a. m., Sunday at Broadway and Liberty street.

TWO REPORTS were received Saturday night of children throwing stones at light bulbs, one at Kiersted and Madison avenue and another at Wrentham and Savoy streets. A report after midnight said youngsters were throwing stones at a window of a house on Green street, and a Spring street resident complained that someone had tossed a tomato through a second floor window.

A few reports Sunday indicated that a few youngsters carried the Halloween idea beyond midnight. At 7:48 p. m., Sunday, a rope was reported tied across Elmendorf street near No. 55, and later Sunday night a woman on West Chestnut street reported receiving a telephone call from someone who said, "I'm gonna get you," and hung up the receiver. This, the report said, was believed to be a Halloween prankster.

A downtown woman complained Saturday night that her son had been given rough treatment by a group of boys at Hone and West Union street. The group had left the area before police arrived.

State police at various stations in the county reported only a few minor pranks and that damage was generally light.

Four Killed

make possible the opening of the route as far south as Harriman early this month.

Truckmen appeared to be favoring travel over customary routes and the thruway is not expected to get a heavy run of trucks until the route is finished further southward.

An engineer reported today that he and a friend timed a run on the Newburgh-Utica section. He came southward from Utica to the Poughkeepsie area over the old routes, he said in three and a half hours, while a friend drove from Utica to New Paltz in two and a half hours.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Nov. 1 (AP)—The stock market maintained a steady position today on the eve of the elections.

Gains and losses spread out over a rather narrow range of a point either way with many leaders holding unchanged.

Trading was at a pace even slower than the 1,900,000 shares traded Friday when the market declined.

Tobacco stocks were higher right from the start. No other major group had a pronounced movement either way.

Among higher stocks were American Tobacco, Reynolds Tobacco "M." Liggett & Myers, Philip Morris, Bethlehem Steel, General Motors, Sperry Corp. (which reported higher earnings), American Telephone, du Pont (higher earnings), and General Electric.

Red China Has Big Population

Tokyo, Nov. 1 (AP)—Red China today claimed the staggering population of 601,930,000 people.

Peiping radio broadcast the new figure, saying it was based on a direct census taken in June 1953.

The new figure is 100,000,000 more than the most recent estimates used by the Reds themselves, and from 125 to 150 million more than most non-Communist estimates.

In terms of population, the new figure makes Red China nearly twice as large as her nearest competitor, India, where the 1951 census reported 356,829,485 people.

Soviet Russia's population numbered 193,000,000 according to a 1947 figure.

Ives Says

000; Auburn, $40,000; Batavia, $86,000; Watertown, $105,000; Rome, $176,000; Plattsburg, $61,900; Hudson, $87,000; Middletown, $63,000; Newburgh, $68,000.

Instead of tapering off, Averell Harriman, the Democratic-Liberal candidate, and Sen. Irving M. Ives, the Republican choice to succeed retiring Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, continued campaigning as though they needed every last vote.

HARRIMAN CHARTERED a plane to visit six cities in Republican upstate. His main purpose was to deny again GOP charges that the Democrats intended to give New York city more state education money at the expense of upstate schools.

Meanwhile, Richard H. Balch, Democratic state chairman, stood on his prediction that Harriman would be elected governor by a plurality of 500,000 to end 12 years of Republican rule.

L. Judson Morhouse, Republican state chairman, pegged Ives as the winner by "a minimum of 315,000" votes.

Impartial observers looked for the closest finish since 1938, when Herbert H. Lehman beat Dewey by 64,394 votes.

TWO STATEWIDE straw-vote polls, competed over the weekend, tagged Harriman as winner. The New York Daily News straws gave him 54.4 to 45.6 for Ives.

The Princeton research service straws gave Harriman 54.9 and Ives 45.1.

The GOP appeared to be staking its hope on a vast turnout in rural and suburban areas, which are normally Republican.

There are 6,214,366 persons eligible to vote tomorrow. Of these, 2,463,056 are registered in New York city. It is expected that approximately 5,200,000 will go to the polls, which will be open from 6 a. m. to 7 p. m.

Harriman's flying tour upstate called for airport rallies of 30 minutes each at Binghamton, Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Utica and Albany. Usually the gubernatorial candidates of the major parties close their campaigns in New York city.

Harriman will return to New York tonight and will vote tomorrow in his home town of Arden, Orange county.

Late tonight Ives and Mrs. Ives will motor to their home city of Norwich and vote there about noon tomorrow. They will return to New York to receive the election returns.

4 Men Set Off

tory. They led the attached wire outside and set off a charge with a battery.

The cap exploded, but the dynamite did not. Damage to the hallway was slight. A score of students asleep in the dormitory were wakened, but no one was injured. The four alleged pranksters fled.

A COLLEGE WATCHMAN and two students noticed the license number of the car and gave it to state police.

State police rounded up the four, who were chums in high school.

Arraigned here yesterday before Justice of the Peace Harold Coon, the four were released in property bond posted by their parents pending hearing Saturday.

Report Clarified On Yule Leaves

A report published last week in regard to Christmas leaves for airmen undergoing basic training was not official, it has been announced by the local U. S. Army and Air Force Recruiting Station.

December graduates of Air Force basic military training classes will be granted a 10-day leave or delay en route before reporting to their next duty stations or technical training school. This means that a majority will be home during the Christmas holidays.

Announcement of the policy was made today by Captain Gilmore Kinney, commander of the 3501st USAF Recruiting Group, Detachment 102, Albany, upon receipt of a message from higher headquarters.

The air force commander said that airmen graduating before December may be granted ordinary leave by their station of assignment, under the provisions of the Christmas leave program.

He further explained the policy set-up for December graduates by stating that the delay en route, which is not to exceed 10 days, also grants airmen travel time to their next duty station. Airmen having automobiles as time of departure will be authorized to use them if they desire to travel by privately owned vehicles. Airmen woh must purchase tickets will be given the opportunity of selecting travel by bus, rail or air. This procedure, Capt. Kinney pointed out, will assure adequate transportation.

One of the provisions applying to this program which is especially important to the airmen is the monetary policy. They will be paid their accrued pay and advance travel prior to departure from the Military Training Wings.

To date no official word has been received at the recruiting headquarters regarding leave for airmen undergoing basic training during Christmas. However, it is anticipated that sufficent leave time will be granted for the airmen to be home on Dec. 25.

200 Planes

they announced that it was "presumed lost." But the search continued after dark with planes carrying special electronic equipment for night search.

The navy still hoped to find survivors. The missing plane, it said, was equipped with five life rafts, each designed to hold 20 men. There were also 102 life preservers aboard.

Taking part in the search were two aircraft carriers, nine destroyers, four transports, two coast guard cutters and hundreds of planes.

THE MISSING transport plane carried a 21-man crew and 21 passengers, including eight civilians and two air force officers. The other passengers were navy men being shipped to new stations.

One entire family was missing with the plane. Lt. Gilbert Jacobsen, 25, of Brooklyn, was flying to his station in North Africa with his wife, Ida, 24, and their two-year-old twin boy and girl.

Also aboard the missing plane were the wife, two sons and daughter of Lt. Cdr. J. W. Harr. They were to join him at his station at Port Lyautey.

Spada Is Injured In Shokan Crash

Michael R. Spada of Glasco was admitted to the Kingston Hospital Sunday afternoon for observation following injuries suffered in an accident at Shokan when his car and that of Reginald David Steers, 55, of 122 Marron Road Ontario, Canada, were in collision on Route 28 at Shokan. At the hospital Spada's condition was reported good and he was expected to leave the hospital later today.

Corporal Ray Dunn of Phoenicia reported Steers was driving a 1951 Cadillac car east at about 40 miles an hour when he pulled to the left to pass another car. Spada, operating his Oldsmobile car east, pulled to the shoulder when he saw the Steers car approaching and, Dunn said, Steers pulled over too and the car collided almost head on.

Steers was arrested on a reckless driving charge and before Justice of the Peace Frank Carle he paid a $25 fine. The accident happened about 4:10 p. m.

Workers Clean Out Thruway Ditches

Thruway workers were called out Sunday morning to clean out ditches along the Thruway in the area near Tillson where clay slides had been experienced during construction.

John Arborio, the contractor, told The Freeman this morning that the action was a "precautionary measure" ordered because of the heavy rains of Friday and Saturday.

Men and equipment were dispatched to stand by in the event that the clay in the rain drenched bank broke loose, but actually "there was no movement of clay," he said. The ditches, designed to help keep any decending clay from pouring onto the highway, were dredged out, also as a precautionary measure, he said.

Brooklyn Man Is Shot in Arm

William Donellan, 26, of Brooklyn, was accidentally shot in the upper right arm while he and three companions were hunting squirrels in the town of Shawangunk Saturday afternoon, state police of Ellenville reported.

The accident occurred about 12:30 p. m. as Donellan was hunting with Carl DeSilva, William Weidcamp and Norman Hamilton, soldiers stationed at Governors Island, troopers said. The .22 calibre which pierced Donellan's arm came from a rifle which DeSilva fired when he observed a movement which he thought to have been a squirrel about 100 yards away, according to the state police report.

Mischief Slight During Halloween Observance Here

Halloween was observed in the city and county with fewer reports of mischief than in many a past year.

Both city and state police reported only a few incidents requiring police attention and property damage was generally light.

Only two false alarms were sounded in Kingston as compared to dozens in other years, and the patrolling of alarm boxes and neighborhoods by volunteer firemen effectively reduced that mischief.

COMMUNITY PARTIES, in Kingston and many other places in the county also helped reduce the usual run of pranks, and general reports indicated that more parents were out with the younger children than in past years.

Saturday's rain had wet down the leaves along streets to the extent that not one fire was reported in piles of leaves in the city and local police had only a half dozen calls reporting other mischief.

A false alarm was sounded at 9:50 p. m., Saturday at Roosevelt avenue and Savoy street, and another at 1:40 a. m., Sunday at Broadway and Liberty street.

TWO REPORTS were received Saturday night of children throwing stones at light bulbs, one at Kiersted and Madison avenue and another at Wrentham and Savoy streets. A report after midnight said youngsters were throwing stones at a window of a house on Green street, and a Spring street resident complained that someone had tossed a tomato through a second floor window.

A few reports Sunday indicated that a few youngsters carried the Halloween idea beyond midnight. At 7:48 p. m., Sunday, a rope was reported tied across Elmendorf street near No. 55, and later Sunday night a woman on West Chestnut street reported receiving a telephone call from someone who said, "I'm gonna get you," and hung up the receiver. This, the report said, was believed to be a Halloween prankster.

A downtown woman complained Saturday night that her son had been given rough treatment by a group of boys at Hone and West Union street. The group had left the area before police arrived.

State police at various stations in the county reported only a few minor pranks and that damage was generally light.

State Toll Eight, Six in Accidents

Albany, Nov. 1 (AP) — Eight persons were killed in weekend accidents in New York state, the lightest toll for such a period in at least several months.

Between 6 p. m. Friday and midnight Sunday, traffic accidents claimed six lives, one man was drowned and a boy was killed in a fall at his home.

Associated Press tabulations of weekend fatalities during the last several months showed the toll to be the lightest on its records. Last weekend 21 persons died in accidents in the state.

Fatalities by community included:

New York—John J. Bullock, 50, Brooklyn, struck by a taxi Saturday.

New York—Desmond Dunne, 45, Floral Park, automobile crashed into a highway divider and overturned Sunday.

New York—Howard Zaput, 45, Brooklyn, two-car collision Sunday.

Three Are Hurt As Auto Leaves Thruway Road

Three persons were admitted to St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh Sunday afternoon with injuries reportedly received when the automobile in which they were riding ran off the thruway seven miles north of Newburgh.

The injured were William J. Quinones, 23, of Newark, who suffered possible fractures of ribs and the right wrist; George Comacho, 26, of Jersey City, who suffered a possible skull fracture, and Hermine Perez, 30 of New York, with contusions and abrasions, and a cut on the forehead. Quinones claimed he was cut off by another car, according to the report.

Won't Desert Ike

So we who two short years ago
Chose you, Dwight Eisenhower,
To lead us in a world of strife,
Desert you in this hour?

And Tuesday, be it rain or shine
We will not let you down.

Thruway Traffic

make possible the opening of the route as far south as Harriman early this month.

Truckmen appeared to be favoring travel over customary routes and the thruway is not expected to get a heavy run of trucks until the route is finished further southward.

An engineer reported today that he and a friend timed a run on the Newburgh-Utica section. He came southward from Utica to the Poughkeepsie area over the old routes, he said in three and a half hours, while a friend drove from Utica to New Paltz in two and a half hours.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Nov. 1 (AP)—The stock market maintained a steady position today on the eve of the elections.

Gains and losses spread out over a rather narrow range of a point either way with many leaders holding unchanged.

Trading was at a pace even slower than the 1,900,000 shares traded Friday when the market declined.

Tobacco stocks were higher right from the start. No other major group had a pronounced movement either way.

Among higher stocks were American Tobacco, Reynolds Tobacco "M," Liggett & Myers, Philip Morris, Bethlehem Steel, General Motors, Sperry Corp. (which reported higher earnings), American Telephone, du Pont (higher earnings), and General Electric.

Red China Has Big Population

Tokyo, Nov. 1 (AP)—Red China today claimed the staggering population of 601,930,000 people.

Peiping radio broadcast the new figure, saying it was based on a direct census taken in June 1953.

The new figure is 100,000,000 more than the most recent estimates used by the Reds themselves, and from 125 to 150 million more than most non-Communist estimates.

In terms of population, the new figure makes Red China nearly twice as large as her nearest competitor, India, where the 1951 census reported 356,829,485 people.

Soviet Russia's population numbered 193,000,000 according to a 1947 figure.

Ives Says

000; Auburn, $40,000; Batavia, $86,000; Watertown, $105,000; Rome, $176,000; Plattsburg, $61,900; Hudson, $87,000; Middletown, $63,000; Newburgh, $68,000.

Instead of tapering off, Averell Harriman, the Democratic-Liberal candidate, and Sen. Irving M. Ives, the Republican choice to succeed retiring Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, continued campaigning as though they needed every last vote.

HARRIMAN CHARTERED a plane to visit six cities in Republican upstate. His main purpose was to deny again GOP charges that the Democrats intended to give New York city more state education money at the expense of upstate schools.

Meanwhile, Richard H. Balch, Democratic state chairman, stood on his prediction that Harriman would be elected governor by a plurality of 500,000 to end 12 years of Republican rule.

L. Judson Morhouse, Republican state chairman, pegged Ives as the winner by "a minimum of 315,000" votes.

Impartial observers looked for the closest finish since 1938, when Herbert H. Lehman beat Dewey by 64,394 votes.

TWO STATEWIDE straw-vote polls, competed over the weekend, tagged Harriman as winner. The New York Daily News straws gave him 54.4 to 45.6 for Ives.

The Princeton research service straws gave Harriman 54.9 and Ives 45.1.

The GOP appeared to be staking its hope on a vast turnout in rural and suburban areas, which are normally Republican.

There are 6,214,366 persons eligible to vote tomorrow. Of these, 2,463,056 are registered in New York city. It is expected that approximately 5,200,000 will go to the polls, which will be open from 6 a. m. to 7 p. m.

Harriman's flying tour upstate called for airport rallies of 30 minutes each at Binghamton, Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Utica and Albany. Usually the gubernatorial candidates of the major parties close their campaigns in New York city.

Harriman will return to New York tonight and will vote tomorrow in his home town of Arden, Orange county.

Late tonight Ives and Mrs. Ives will motor to their home city of Norwich and vote there about noon tomorrow. They will return to New York to receive the election returns.

4 Men Set Off

tory. They led the attached wire outside and set off a charge with a battery.

The cap exploded, but the dynamite did not. Damage to the hallway was slight. A score of students asleep in the dormitory were wakened, but no one was injured. The four alleged pranksters fled.

A COLLEGE WATCHMAN and two students noticed the license number of the car and gave it to state police.

State police rounded up the four, who were chums in high school.

Arraigned here yesterday before Justice of the Peace Harold Coon, the four were released in property bond posted by their parents pending hearing Saturday.

Report Clarified On Yule Leaves

A report published last week in regard to Christmas leaves for airmen undergoing basic training was not official, it has been announced by the local U. S. Army and Air Force Recruiting Station.

December graduates of Air Force basic military training classes will be granted a 10-day leave or delay en route before reporting to their next duty stations or technical training school. This means that a majority will be home during the Christmas holidays.

Announcement of the policy was made today by Captain Gilmore Kinney, commander of the 3501st USAF Recruiting Group, Detachment 102, Albany, upon receipt of a message from higher headquarters.

The air force commander said that airmen graduating before December may be granted ordinary leave by their station of assignment, under the provisions of the Christmas leave program.

Taking part in the search were two aircraft carriers, nine destroyers, four transports, two coast guard cutters and hundreds of planes.

THE MISSING transport plane carried a 21-man crew and 21 passengers, including eight civilians and two air force officers. The other passengers were navy men being shipped to new stations.

One entire family was missing with the plane. Lt. Gilbert Jacobsen, 25, of Brooklyn, was flying to his station in North Africa with his wife, Ida, 24, and their two-year-old twin boy and girl.

Also aboard the missing plane were the wife, two sons and daughter of Lt. Cdr. J. W. Harr. They were to join him at his station at Port Lyautey.

200 Planes

they announced that it was "presumed lost." But the search continued after dark with planes carrying special electronic equipment for night search.

The navy still hoped to find survivors. The missing plane, it said, was equipped with five life rafts, each designed to hold 20 men. There were also 102 life preservers aboard.

Taking part in the search were two aircraft carriers, nine destroyers, four transports, two coast guard cutters and hundreds of planes.

Paltz Man Shares In Deyo Estate

New York, Nov. 1 (Special)—Jesse Deyo of New Paltz shares largely in the $1,122,279 estate left by his brother, the late Charles W. Deyo, for 10 years president of the F. W. Woolworth Company, according to the findings here Saturday of the State Transfer Tax Department.

His property was set at $1,187,250, gross, and $1,122,279 net value, by today's appraisal. Stocks and bonds amounted to $581,466 of it.

After distribution of about $115,000 in specific bequests and payment of taxes, the income from one-fifth shares of the estate go to the New Paltz brother, two sisters, Frances Atkins of Pine Plains and Rachel Fitch of Poughkeepsie; and two sisters-in-law, Belle Kittell and Julia Parker. On their death, a number of nieces and nephews will get the principal of the trust funds.

Deyo spent his entire business life with two companies, the S. H. Knox Company, a chain of five and ten cent stores and later, after a merger, with the Woolworth Company.

He rose to become its president in 1936, holding the post for 10 years, when he voluntarily gave it up. He retired in 1950.

He died at the age of 72 Dec. 18, 1952.

Potential Tragedy For Our Schools

Here is what the Buffalo Evening News says about Tammany's threat to cripple our schools:

"A potential tragedy for the New York state public school system is in the making if the Tammany-dictated Democratic state organization wins control of the state government on November 2.

"It is time, and past time, for upstate voters to realize the full seriousness and arrogance of the Tammany bid.

"For the first time since the days of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, a serious move is being made—under Tammany and New York city Democratic sponsorship — to scrap the 'equal opportunity' principle of state aid for schools that has been aptly described as 'New York's guarantee against educational slums.'

The Buffalo Evening News, one of the great newspapers of our state concludes:

"Upstate voters — especially in the suburban and fine central school districts—had better wake up, and save their schools. Tammany's teeth are showing."

An Important Issue Facing Public Education Tomorrow

This message is an urgent one for parents and teachers in Ulster County:

Here is what the President of the New York State School Board Association reported to school board members about the attack on the Al Smith equal-opportunity school aid formula:

"It is the most important issue facing public education, in this State today. It has implications for every board of education, every professional educator, every citizen and every school child in the State.

"Today the principle of equal educational opportunity for each child is in jeopardy. It is under public attack. There are powerful forces at work that would turn us away from this truly American policy.

"Every American, I am sure, deep in his heart, believes in this principle. Practically without exception boards of education believe firmly in this principle.

"State aid has been paid to our school districts on this basis. Governor Smith interpreted this to mean, and we quote —'larger state aid to those communities where the financial burden for the support of the school is especially heavy.'"

Bodies of Three Found in Plane

Middletown, Conn., Nov. 1 (AP)—Bodies of two men and a woman, almost consumed by fire in the crash of their private plane, were taken from a hillside here yesterday. The two Civil Air Patrol fliers who found the wreckage are in a hospital with serious injuries suffered in a crash landing.

Pilot Donald Goodridge, 44, of Hamburg, flying William Campbell, 41, and his wife, 39, of Lockport from New York city to Windsor Locks, was many miles east of his course and headed back in a westerly direction when the two-engine plane crashed into the side of Mt. Higby, inside Middletown's city limits.

THE PLANE, owned by the Lockport Felt Co. of Newfane, disappeared after taking off from LaGuardia Field late Friday.

It was missing until just before 3:30 a. m. yesterday when John Kekacs, 27, of Stratford, and John Dixon, 40, of Milford, cruising in one of several Civil Air Patrol planes on a search mission, sighted it.

Kekacs attempted to land in a nearby pasture. The plane overturned. Dixon suffered a thorax fracture. Kekacs leg was broken.

The time of Goodridge's crash was undetermined, but a woman living about a mile from the scene said a low-flying plane, apparently headed west, awakened her sometime Friday night.

Dr. Carl Harvey, medical examiner, said all three victims met instantaneous death.

Paltz Man Shares In Deyo Estate

New York, Nov. 1 (Special)—Jesse Deyo of New Paltz shares largely in the $1,122,279 estate left by his brother, the late Charles W. Deyo, for 10 years president of the F. W. Woolworth Company, according to the findings here Saturday of the State Transfer Tax Department.

His property was set at $1,187,250, gross, and $1,122,279 net value, by today's appraisal. Stocks and bonds amounted to $581,466 of it.

After distribution of about $115,000 in specific bequests and payment of taxes, the income from one-fifth shares of the estate go to the New Paltz brother, two sisters, Frances Atkins of Pine Plains and Rachel Fitch of Poughkeepsie; and two sisters-in-law, Belle Kittell and Julia Parker. On their death, a number of nieces and nephews will get the principal of the trust funds.

Deyo spent his entire business life with two companies, the S. H. Knox Company, a chain of five and ten cent stores and later, after a merger, with the Woolworth Company.

He rose to become its president in 1936, holding the post for 10 years, when he voluntarily gave it up. He retired in 1950.

He died at the age of 72 Dec. 18, 1952.

Potential Tragedy For Our Schools

Here is what the Buffalo Evening News says about Tammany's threat to cripple our schools:

"A potential tragedy for the New York state public school system is in the making if the Tammany-dictated Democratic state organization wins control of the state government on November 2.

"It is time, and past time, for upstate voters to realize the full seriousness and arrogance of the Tammany bid.

"For the first time since the days of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, a serious move is being made—under Tammany and New York city Democratic sponsorship — to scrap the 'equal opportunity' principle of state aid for schools that has been aptly described as 'New York's guarantee against educational slums.'

The Buffalo Evening News, one of the great newspapers of our state concludes:

"Upstate voters — especially in the suburban and fine central school districts—had better wake up, and save their schools. Tammany's teeth are showing."

An Important Issue Facing Public Education Tomorrow

This message is an urgent one for parents and teachers in Ulster County:

Here is what the President of the New York State School Board Association reported to school board members about the attack on the Al Smith equal-opportunity school aid formula:

"It is the most important issue facing public education, in this State today. It has implications for every board of education, every professional educator, every citizen and every school child in the State.

"Today the principle of equal educational opportunity for each child is in jeopardy. It is under public attack. There are powerful forces at work that would turn us away from this truly American policy.

"Every American, I am sure, deep in his heart, believes in this principle. Practically without exception boards of education believe firmly in this principle.

"State aid has been paid to our school districts on this basis. Governor Smith interpreted this to mean, and we quote —'larger state aid to those communities where the financial burden for the support of the school is especially heavy.'"

Bodies of Three Found in Plane

Middletown, Conn., Nov. 1 (AP)—Bodies of two men and a woman, almost consumed by fire in the crash of their private plane, were taken from a hillside here yesterday. The two Civil Air Patrol fliers who found the wreckage are in a hospital with serious injuries suffered in a crash landing.

Pilot Donald Goodridge, 44, of Hamburg, flying William Campbell, 41, and his wife, 39, of Lockport from New York city to Windsor Locks, was many miles east of his course and headed back in a westerly direction when the two-engine plane crashed into the side of Mt. Higby, inside Middletown's city limits.

THE PLANE, owned by the Lockport Felt Co. of Newfane, disappeared after taking off from LaGuardia Field late Friday.

It was missing until just before 3:30 a. m. yesterday when John Kekacs, 27, of Stratford, and John Dixon, 40, of Milford, cruising in one of several Civil Air Patrol planes on a search mission, sighted it.

Kekacs attempted to land in a nearby pasture. The plane overturned. Dixon suffered a thorax fracture. Kekacs leg was broken.

The time of Goodridge's crash was undetermined, but a woman living about a mile from the scene said a low-flying plane, apparently headed west, awakened her sometime Friday night.

Dr. Carl Harvey, medical examiner, said all three victims met instantaneous death.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, NOVEMBER 1, 1954

A REASON TO VOTE TOMORROW

One of the strangest of all the strange things about Averell Harriman, who wants to be Governor of New York, is the company he keeps. And you can't get him without his company—Tammany Hall.

This same Tammany Hall which is mismanaging New York City, now wants to get its hands on the billion dollars a year needed to carry on the services of our state government in Albany.

Take just one item—state aid to local schools. If the Tammany crowd gets in control in Albany they will scuttle the equalization formula and grant New York City preferential treatment in state aid at the expense of the rest of the state. The loss to the City of Kingston under the Tammany-Democrat formula would be $238,910. Other school districts in the county would lose proportionately. All of this would have to be made up through local taxes.

This is one reason why the voters of Kingston and Ulster County should go to the polls tomorrow.

Senator Ives has had vast experience as legislator both in Albany and in Washington. He can be depended upon to carry forward the great record of Republican accomplishment in New York.

The great record of Senator Arthur H. Wicks and Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson are so well known to the voters of this district and county they need no further commendation. Their work in the legislature has been outstanding and they will continue to perform satisfactorily with the Republican governor.

During his quarter-century service, Senator Wicks fought hard for the interests of the people in his district. Some of his accomplishments in the City of Kingston and County of Ulster are the elimination of the Broadway crossing, the providing of ferry service across the Hudson, the erection of the Kingston-Rhinebeck Bridge and the bringing of the great Thruway to the west side of the Hudson River.

This is another reason why the people should go to the polls tomorrow.

The entire Republican ticket presents an admirable selection. Voters will make no mistake in voting Row A All the Way.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED

If you are a typical family man who earns $4500 a year and works the usual eight-hour day, the Tax Foundation has some news for you.

Two hours and thirty-five minutes of that day go to earn the money needed to pay your taxes, direct and indirect. That's much longer than you need work to buy your food, almost twice as long as it takes to pay your housing costs, and four times as long as for your clothing or transportation.

It used to be argued that only wealthy people had any particular interest in the tax question, and that the way to meet government costs was to soak the rich. How times have changed! There aren't enough rich people if you took their total income. Today everybody is soaked to the limit. It is the masses of people who have the greatest interest in cutting government spending and the tax bite.

BETTER ROADS NEEDED

No year goes by without improvements in the new models of automobiles. They become more powerful, faster, safer in many respects, and more economical to operate. Yet in too many parts of the country these automobiles must travel along roads that were inadequate when the old Model-T's made their first appearance.

Highway building programs of the type proposed by President Eisenhower must be started without too much delay. Investments in roads and highways are made not to provide luxury for motorists but to improve and maintain channels of communication and transportation.

We cannot remain a prosperous nation by standing still. To maintain our standard of living and improve it we must continue to build and expand. Improving and building needed roads and highways is one step in that expansion.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

This perhaps is the most significant fact in the now concluded campaign; the stature and influence of both political parties have suffered a decline among the people. Candidates are running in their own names and on their own personalities. The parties have ceased to matter. As I write this, I am in Louisville, Kentucky, where the ancient Veep, Alben Barkley, is contesting the seat in the United States Senate of John Sherman Cooper. Here, as everywhere else, the contest is personal, as though there were no political parties. It is a popularity contest. Both had signed the silly agreement to be genteel.

Furthermore, in each state the campaign is local. Just as in New York the Democrats are attacking Thomas E. Dewey, who is not a candidate, so in Ohio, the contest between George Bender and Thomas Burke is affected by the popularity of Governor Lausche who is not a candidate. In Massachusetts, Leverett Saltonstall faces the wall of Joe McCarthy which, in Massachusetts, is a local issue, and Irving Ives in New York may lose because New York McCarthyites threaten not to vote at all. None of this has anything to do, pro or con, with the Eisenhower legislative program.

Although President Eisenhower provides statistics to establish the smallness of unemployment, the fact remains that in many areas, there is unemployment. This is particularly true in coal states, coal being a dying product outmoded by other fuels and competing with residual oil from abroad which should not be admitted to this country under any circumstances because it is not required by our economy and only serves as a socially dislocating element. The same is true of railroad workers, particularly those whose roads depend to a degree on the shipments of coal. The layoff of such workers, many of whom are accustomed to vote Republican, is a serious factor in this campaign. The same is true of automobile workers in Michigan, who are not impressed by statistics which do not relate to their personal experience. The emotions of unemployment can never be treated by the barbiturate of statistics.

While the farm community is divided over the question of rigid or flexible price supports, those farmers who are hit by falling prices fail to recognize that any reduction of our inflation is beneficial to them. Each man casts his own vote and is affected by his own immediate concerns. Farm prices have been too high from the standpoint of the city purchaser but not from the standpoint of the selling farmer. And the city man votes in his state and the farmer in his. And whereas the city man does not vote on the basis of a lowering price, the farmer does and must take that into consideration.

Sooner or later, the current excitement over the relation between cigarette paper and cancer will adversely affect those states where tobacco for cigarettes is grown. One of the major economic and social difficulties we face is over-production of agricultural commodities. It used to be argued, in the Depression days, that it is impossible to over-produce; that it is only possible to under-consume. Learned economists wrote tomes on the subject. We now know that that is not correct and the evidence is available in the storehouses of the Department of Agriculture where lie butter and wheat and cotton and many other agricultural commodities for which there is no market in the United States and none abroad unless we give the stuff away.

The farmer who is producing too much refuses to acknowledge that he is the one; it is always the other fellow. Production is a personal matter that means prosperity or indebtedness for the individual family. On the other hand, it is impossible to convince a farmer that he is not entitled to price supports when such a contract has been written for the Dixon-Yates group which gives them a guaranteed profit. If a profit is guaranteed a public utility, whatever the reason, how can it be said to the farmer that he may plant the crops but not reap the profits?

This inconsistency of policy is a definite factor in the present campaign and will affect the political action long after the campaign is over. A benefit given to one economic segment must, politically, be balanced by benefits to other economic segments of the population.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

THE PHYSICIAN'S DILEMMA

In these days when so large a proportion of our population is among the group which used to be considered "old," namely from 60 years of age onward, there has been a great deal of literature devoted to their care and the medical specialties of gerontology and geriatrics (care of the aging) have come into existence. Perhaps it might be helpful to consider the problems of the aging physician in his relationship to modern medicine.

In an editorial in the magazine "Geriatrics," Dr. Ralph Beatty of Uniontown, Pennsylvania, states that when he was a boy, a person was of middle age in his 40's and old at 60. Now he is young at 40, middle-aged at 60 and he never grows old.

The older physician today recalls the era of the "homemade mustard plaster, Dover's powder, rhubarb and soda, Brown's mixture of elixir of iron, quinine and strychnine, which, when mixed with a generous portion of healthy patient-confidence, cured 80 per cent of the common ills."

Neither the patient nor the physician would want to return to those "good old days" when mankind was ravaged by tuberculosis, pneumonia, scarlet fever, diphtheria, carbuncles and boils. Now the situation is reversing itself; many of these diseases are rarely seen but the drugs are legion. "To be convinced, one need only make a list of the new preparations that cross the physician's desk in one week. If they all do what is claimed for them, we should be out of business in six months." The drug companies too have turned to specialization with their hematinics (iron preparations) for children's diseases, estrogens or ovary preparations for women, vitamins for the geriatrician, and laxatives and hypnotics for everyone.

Formerly to make his diagnosis, the physician was armed with a flashlight, a stethoscope and his sixth sense—namely his experience—and did a creditable job of doctoring for many years. Now he finds arrayed against him the encephalograph, the electrocardiograph, the bronchoscope, the cystoscope, the sigmoidoscope, and a whole assembly line of diagnostic gadgets.

"This physician has tried to keep abreast of medical progress but it appears that while he was traveling on an internal combustion plant, the rest of the world has shifted to jet propulsion."

"And so he looks to the geriatrician and gerontologist for help. They are finding ways and means of adapting the aging population to modern times, to a world that seems to be made by and for the younger generation. Perhaps they will lend a sympathetic ear to the middle-aged physician for whom it is too late to begin again but who is too young and vigorous to retire.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Naples, Italy — (NEA)—The most commonly heard criticism of the U. S. aid program for Italy is that, "It made the rich richer and the poor poorer." But American government official in Italy will concede only the first half of that statement as true.

There is no question that most of the American aid money went to help restore Italian industry. The theory was that the aid would "trickle down" to provide more jobs for Italians. To the extent that this phenomenon took place, it did help Italian recovery. But the immediate effect was to make the rich richer. And by the time any indirect benefits had been passed on to wage earners, they were unrecognizable as American aid.

This brings up the question of just where the United States and the American people stand today in Italian public opinion. In a month's travel up and down and across northern Italy, often getting in many out-of-the-way places, this writer experienced no single act of hostility or unpleasantness.

THE ONLY DISCOURTESY observed was that of one loud-mouthed American to the Italians. Italy has been living off of tourists for years, however, and takes them for granted. Nevertheless, it was commonly said that today the Americans are not as popular in Italy as they used to be.

Giovanni Ansaldo, an Italian journalist, recently wrot a long piece on this subject. It was published in "Il Mattino" of Naples, and it has been widely copied and discussed throughout Italy.

One view is that Ansaldo was speaking only for himself and that his opinions do not represent the true feelings of the Italian government nor the Italian people. The other view is that he put his finger on some fundamental truths on which all Americans should ponder.

Why are Americans unpopular—not only in Italy, but all over Europe as well? The first reason, says Signor Ansaldo, is that "Americans are among us. They reveal to us our faults in such a way that we can see them well . . . Everyone of us has known at least one episode in which an American has cut an ugly figure. Following the law of generalization, each of us, on the basis of that one episode, judges America and the Americans.

"THE RUSSIANS, in comparison with the Americans, have an enormous practical advantage," the writer continues. "The Russians are not seen. Who knows a Russian? Nobody. It is therefore very easy for the western Europeans to attribute to the Russians all the virtues, based on the principle that man esteems above all what he does not see or know."

The second reason why Americans are unpopular, writes the Italian, is that, "Americans are rich—much richer than we are—and wealth makes one deprived of it envious . . . They eat better, dress better, smoke better. Every public appearance of an American is resented as a provocation and an offense.

"The Russians, from the beginning, found themselves in a far more advantageous situation. The relative poverty of the Russians, visible even in their armed corps, is in their favor in European opinion."

The third and most important reason for American unpopularity, according to the Ansaldo thesis, is that "They've tried to help the European people reconstruct Europe. To help your neighbor is a heartbreaking operation. Generally the benefactor is resented and is never forgiven.

"TODAY, FROM ONE END OF western Europe to another, there is no wretch half or more than half dressed and nourished by American loans and subsidies who does not say that America has done all that for its own filthy interest and deceitful ends . . .

"Here also the Russians extract an immense benefit. They haven't helped anyone for the good reason that they can't. Thus they have not offended European sensitivities.

"What can America do to change this situation?" asks Writer Ansaldo. "The means is very simple," he says: "Leave Europe. Not to be here any more. Not to show their wealth. Not to help anyone. . . .

"Will the Americans resort to this means? We guess not. But one point is sure. If they . . . would resort to that means, within a few months Americans would again be very 'simpatico.' And one would wait for them, hoping and praying that they would come back."

Steeple Leans to the North

The church of Alfriston, England, was originally built in a field called "The Seven Crofts." As a result of a severe hurricane the church steeple began to lean towards the north. Because of a dream by a parishioner, the structure was disassembled and transported to another field one mile away. In 1835 another severe hurricane struck the tower and it again leans toward the north.

Guesses Only—No Actual Data—Are Made About How Congressional Vote Will Go

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 1 — Nearly every congressional election is a surprise—and this one will be no exception. That's because the public gets a picture which confuses what happens in a presidential election — where there are two candidates only — with a congressional election where there are this year at least 70 candidates for the Senate and several hundred candidates for the House.

Everybody is really guessing as to the outcome. No polls have been made in each of the districts and states that compare at all with the scientific sampling polls conducted during a presidential campaign.

The late Franklin D. Roosevelt used to say to callers that every congressional election in the middle of a presidential term was "local" and that it was not based on any national trend or any yardstick indicating the confidence or lack of confidence of the people in the policies of the President.

This correspondent has written about eleven of such off-year elections and in not one of them did the party managers themselves in their private estimates predict the outcome accurately. They sometimes felt confident of victory but it either was narrower or larger than they expected—they had no reliable means of advance measurement.

So this writer offers his own theory, which is that the congressional election will not result in the "landslide" for the Democrats widely predicted a month ago, but will be a close election in the sense that a few seats either way will decide the control of the Senate and the House of Representatives respectively. The biggest surprise of all would, of course, be the retention of control of both Houses by the Republicans.

How could such an unexpected result materialize? The answer lies in the study of national trends over the years. This is a little-noticed phase of the electorate's behavior often overlooked, as some observers insist on repeating the fallacy that President Eisenhower's feat in running ahead of his congressional ticket in 1952 was something unusual and due only to his popularity. The fact is that no overall percentage of the vote of either party for congressional candidates has ever been equal to that of the winning presidential candidate. Separate ballots or separate columns in the voting machines or unfamiliarity with the candidates' names are the main reasons.

The important thing to study is the upward or downward movement of the long-range trend of each party's strength. President Roosevelt's trend, which began in 1932, rose considerably in 1936. The unusual happened in the 1934 off-year election when the Democratic congressional trend actually went higher than two years before. This surprised everybody, including Mr. Roosevelt.

But 1936 was the peak, and the Democratic percentage of the total vote for Congress thereafter went steadily downward. This national percentage, restored in part on the Congress vote, was pushed up somewhat in presidential years, but was never restored to its high point of 1934.

The long-range trend of the Republicans started upward in a substantial way in 1952, and if the deep-seated resentments manifested against the Democratic party then are still present, the curve should logically stay where it is. The maintenance of such a trend might have been assured if the Republicans had reminded the voters of the issues which produced the negative trend against the Democrats in 1952. But the Republican high command, though repeatedly warned, mistakenly ignored those tactics until late in the congressional campaign when it finally started talking a good deal about "communism, corruption and Korea"—the basic issues which two years ago brought the anti-Truman verdict.

No campaign can be won by the party in power if the opposition party takes the offensive and the incumbents remain weakly defensive. So the Democrats made the louder noise during 1953 and most of 1954. That's why the political writers have almost universally assumed that the Democrats were coming back into power.

In less than two weeks, however, the Republicans have gone on the offensive. President Eisenhower himself jumped into the fray with personal appearances on the stump. Then the various writers and politicians on both sides began saying frankly that the Republicans were "picking up" or "gaining." Others wrote that it was "too late" or "not enough" and that the voters had already made up their minds. That might be true in a presidential year, but not necessarily in an off year. Also no such campaigning by television as has been carried on this year, especially on local or regional networks, has ever occurred before in a congressional race. It is a novel and quick way to reach voters and one that can be readily underestimated as to its effects by the forecasters.

The basic factors in every election—aside from the personality of the candidates—tend to revolve around the issues of economic contentment or discontent, integrity in government, and the war or peace outlook.

In this campaign the Republicans have had the peace issue on their side as well as integrity in government. As for the economic-discontent issue, its effects are sometimes spotty—as is the case this year—and can often be overcome by urging more of the employed to go to the polls or by stressing the so-called emotional issues. Honesty in government, anti-communism, and the peace outlook have been the emotional issues this time.

Everyone who has been observing the campaign firsthand has written about the "apathy." It could be a big advantage to the Republicans. For the failure of citizens to register or to go to the polls is found largely in what the pollsters call the "less educated" groups. The "better educated," according to scientific polls, are apathetic too, but they do vote when aroused by newspaper or radio or television appeals. The Republican party has always had a larger number of so-called educated millions in its ranks than the Democratic party.

This writer has never ventured to make a positive forecast of the outcome of a congressional election in midterm of a president because national trends are too often submerged by local or personality issues in each district.

Due to the late efforts of the Republicans they will be able to prevent a sweeping defeat on all fronts. The victory for either party in the Senate will be by a very narrow margin. As for the House, irrespective of which party has organizational control, the majority to be recorded on legislative roll calls will be a Republican-Democratic coalition of non-radical votes. Anybody who thinks he can point to a "mandate" in this week's election will have a hard time proving it.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Boston, Oct. 31—A gruesome implication lay just beneath Charles E. Wilson's analogy of "bird dogs and kennel-fed dogs." Wilson was discussing a meeting with a group of businessmen from a "distressed area" who wanted more contracts for materials of war because 150 young men in the neighborhood had not been called in the draft. Thus these boys were out of work.

Now it is true, as Wilson put it, that some men of gumpton will go afield to find work when there is none to be found at home, but these 150 presumably have had little or no worldly experience and hesitate to venture beyond their accustomed horizons alone. Form them into the shapeless ranks of the draftees leaving home for the army camp and they are not alone, even though they be personal strangers to one another. But it is a different matter by far for a kid, with no experience as a workman earning his own living away from home, to tie loose, go to a strange city and find a job and living quarters and strike up his own acquaintances.

We bowed to the arrogant propaganda of pressure "groups" mainly with headquarters in New York forbidding by law the employment of kids under 16. That shut them off from experience and complicated their lives and the lives of their families in unforseen ways. It made for indolence and dependence and, we are credibly told, for criminality on the part of "punks." They are big and strong enough to earn spending money and occupy their leisure time in useful or, at worst, harmless concerns, but whoever hires them under 16 may go to jail.

Now, and ever since F. D. Roosevelt resorted to undisguised militarism as the sequel to his civilian conservation corps, we try to use up some of our surplus manpower by dragooning boys just becoming men into the "armed services." This costs billions but billions are only numerals now. Charlie Wilson's terribly significant remark touches the fact that if the "government" does not put guns in their hands for two years, they and their parents, the politicians, the unions and the chambers of commerce expect the "government" to hire them to manufacture guns to be put in the hands of others. The "gun" may be aircraft, vehicles or clothing. Roosevelt and Truman never did succeed in relieving that slump which was falsely described as Hoover's depression. It struck in Hoover's term but it would surely have struck in the term of Al Smith, Democrat, if he had had the misfortune to be elected in 1928.

Roosevelt and his brain trust whooped into Washington arm in arm with Communist traitors mainly drawn from New England, of all places. Then, after a program of squandering which permanently discredited the dollar as a standard of value and honor as a virtue, they set their minds to the problem of getting the United States into the war to destroy the enemies of Soviet Russia. In this way, they would "employ" all the manpower we had. They dragooned some 14 million men, mainly young fellows. In their indecent design on the morals of western civilization, they maneuvered to get as many young women as they could. This was a gross brutality because the unions were wasting civilian manpower at the rate of 5,000 strikes a year in "war industries" alone, notwithstanding a "pledge" by Phil Murray and William Green

A REASON TO VOTE TOMORROW

One of the strangest of all the strange things about Averell Harriman, who wants to be Governor of New York, is the company he keeps. And you can't get him without his company—Tammany Hall.

This same Tammany Hall which is mismanaging New York City, now wants to get its hands on the billion dollars a year needed to carry on the services of our state government in Albany.

Take just one item—state aid to local schools. If the Tammany crowd gets in control in Albany they will scuttle the equalization formula and grant New York City preferential treatment in state aid at the expense of the rest of the state. The loss to the City of Kingston under the Tammany-Democrat formula would be $238,910. Other school districts in the county would lose proportionately. All of this would have to be made up through local taxes.

This is one reason why the voters of Kingston and Ulster County should go to the polls tomorrow.

Senator Ives has had vast experience as legislator both in Albany and in Washington. He can be depended upon to carry forward the great record of Republican accomplishment in New York.

The great record of Senator Arthur H. Wicks and Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson are so well known to the voters of this district and county they need no further commendation. Their work in the legislature has been outstanding and they will continue to perform satisfactorily with the Republican governor.

During his quarter-century service, Senator Wicks fought hard for the interests of the people in his district. Some of his accomplishments in the City of Kingston and County of Ulster are the elimination of the Broadway crossing, the providing of ferry service across the Hudson, the erection of the Kingston-Rhinebeck Bridge and the bringing of the great Thruway to the west side of the Hudson River.

This is another reason why the people should go to the polls tomorrow.

The entire Republican ticket presents an admirable selection. Voters will make no mistake in voting Row A All the Way.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED

If you are a typical family man who earns $4500 a year and works the usual eight-hour day, the Tax Foundation has some news for you.

Two hours and thirty-five minutes of that day go to earn the money needed to pay your taxes, direct and indirect. That's much longer than you need work to buy your food, almost twice as long as it takes to pay your housing costs, and four times as long as for your clothing or transportation.

It used to be argued that only wealthy people had any particular interest in the tax question, and that the way to meet government costs was to soak the rich. How times have changed! There aren't enough rich people if you took their total income. Today everybody is soaked to the limit. It is the masses of people who have the greatest interest in cutting government spending and the tax bite.

BETTER ROADS NEEDED

No year goes by without improvements in the new models of automobiles. They become more powerful, faster, safer in many respects, and more economical to operate. Yet in too many parts of the country these automobiles must travel along roads that were inadequate when the old Model-T's made their first appearance.

Highway building programs of the type proposed by President Eisenhower must be started without too much delay. Investments in roads and highways are made not to provide luxury for motorists but to improve and maintain channels of communication and transportation.

We cannot remain a prosperous nation by standing still. To maintain our standard of living and improve it we must continue to build and expand. Improving and building needed roads and highways is one step in that expansion.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

This perhaps is the most significant fact in the now concluded campaign; the stature and influence of both political parties have suffered a decline among the people. Candidates are running in their own names and on their own personalities. The parties have ceased to matter. As I write this, I am in Louisville, Kentucky, where the ancient Veep, Alben Barkley, is contesting the seat in the United States Senate of John Sherman Cooper. Here, as everywhere else, the contest is personal, as though there were no political parties. It is a popularity contest. Both had signed the silly agreement to be genteel.

Furthermore, in each state the campaign is local. Just as in New York the Democrats are attacking Thomas E. Dewey, who is not a candidate, so in Ohio, the contest between George Bender and Thomas Burke is affected by the popularity of Governor Lausche who is not a candidate. In Massachusetts, Leverett Saltonstall faces the wall of Joe McCarthy which, in Massachusetts, is a local issue, and Irving Ives in New York may lose because New York McCarthyites threaten not to vote at all. None of this has anything to do, pro or con, with the Eisenhower legislative program.

Although President Eisenhower provides statistics to establish the smallness of unemployment, the fact remains that in many areas, there is unemployment. This is particularly true in coal states, coal being a dying product outmoded by other fuels and competing with residual oil from abroad which should not be admitted to this country under any circumstances because it is not required by our economy and only serves as a socially dislocating element. The same is true of railroad workers, particularly those whose roads depend to a degree on the shipments of coal. The layoff of such workers, many of whom are accustomed to vote Republican, is a serious factor in this campaign. The same is true of automobile workers in Michigan, who are not impressed by statistics which do not relate to their personal experience. The emotions of unemployment can never be treated by the barbiturate of statistics.

While the farm community is divided over the question of rigid or flexible price supports, those farmers who are hit by falling prices fail to recognize that any reduction of our inflation is beneficial to them. Each man casts his own vote and is affected by his own immediate concerns. Farm prices have been too high from the standpoint of the city purchaser but not from the standpoint of the selling farmer. And the city man votes in his state and the farmer in his. And whereas the city man does not vote on the basis of a lowering price, the farmer does and must take that into consideration.

Sooner or later, the current excitement over the relation between cigarette paper and cancer will adversely affect those states where tobacco for cigarettes is grown. One of the major economic and social difficulties we face is over-production of agricultural commodities. It used to be argued, in the Depression days, that it is impossible to over-produce; that it is only possible to under-consume. Learned economists wrote tomes on the subject. We now know that that is not correct and the evidence is available in the storehouses of the Department of Agriculture where lie butter and wheat and cotton and many other agricultural commodities for which there is no market in the United States and none abroad unless we give the stuff away.

The farmer who is producing too much refuses to acknowledge that he is the one; it is always the other fellow. Production is a personal matter that means prosperity or indebtedness for the individual family. On the other hand, it is impossible to convince a farmer that he is not entitled to price supports when such a contract has been written for the Dixon-Yates group which gives them a guaranteed profit. If a profit is guaranteed a public utility, whatever the reason, how can it be said to the farmer that he may plant the crops but not reap the profits?

This inconsistency of policy is a definite factor in the present campaign and will affect the political action long after the campaign is over. A benefit given to one economic segment must, politically, be balanced by benefits to other economic segments of the population.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

THE PHYSICIAN'S DILEMMA

In these days when so large a proportion of our population is among the group which used to be considered "old," namely from 60 years of age onward, there has been a great deal of literature devoted to their care and the medical specialties of gerontology and geriatrics (care of the aging) have come into existence. Perhaps it might be helpful to consider the problems of the aging physician in his relationship to modern medicine.

In an editorial in the magazine "Geriatrics," Dr. Ralph Beatty of Uniontown, Pennsylvania, states that when he was a boy, a person was of middle age in his 40's and old at 60. Now he is young at 40, middle-aged at 60 and he never grows old.

The older physician today recalls the era of the "homemade mustard plaster, Dover's powder, rhubarb and soda, Brown's mixture of elixir of iron, quinine and strychnine, which, when mixed with a generous portion of healthy patient-confidence, cured 80 per cent of the common ills."

Neither the patient nor the physician would want to return to those "good old days" when mankind was ravaged by tuberculosis, pneumonia, scarlet fever, diphtheria, carbuncles and boils. Now the situation is reversing itself; many of these diseases are rarely seen but the drugs are legion. "To be convinced, one need only make a list of the new preparations that cross the physician's desk in one week. If they all do what is claimed for them, we should be out of business in six months." The drug companies too have turned to specialization with their hematinics (iron preparations) for children's diseases, estrogens or ovary preparations for women, vitamins for the geriatrician, and laxatives and hypnotics for everyone.

Formerly to make his diagnosis, the physician was armed with a flashlight, a stethoscope and his sixth sense—namely his experience—and did a creditable job of doctoring for many years. Now he finds arrayed against him the encephalograph, the electrocardiograph, the bronchoscope, the cystoscope, the sigmoidoscope, and a whole assembly line of diagnostic gadgets.

"This physician has tried to keep abreast of medical progress but it appears that while he was traveling on an internal combustion plant, the rest of the world has shifted to jet propulsion."

"And so he looks to the geriatrician and gerontologist for help. They are finding ways and means of adapting the aging population to modern times, to a world that seems to be made by and for the younger generation. Perhaps they will lend a sympathetic ear to the middle-aged physician for whom it is too late to begin again but who is too young and vigorous to retire.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Naples, Italy — (NEA)—The most commonly heard criticism of the U. S. aid program for Italy is that, "It made the rich richer and the poor poorer." But American government official in Italy will concede only the first half of that statement as true.

There is no question that most of the American aid money went to help restore Italian industry. The theory was that the aid would "trickle down" to provide more jobs for Italians. To the extent that this phenomenon took place, it did help Italian recovery. But the immediate effect was to make the rich richer. And by the time any indirect benefits had been passed on to wage earners, they were unrecognizable as American aid.

This brings up the question of just where the United States and the American people stand today in Italian public opinion. In a month's travel up and down and across northern Italy, often getting in many out-of-the-way places, this writer experienced no single act of hostility or unpleasantness.

THE ONLY DISCOURTESY observed was that of one loudmouthed American to the Italians. Italy has been living off of tourists for years, however, and takes them for granted. Nevertheless, it was commonly said that today the Americans are not as popular in Italy as they used to be.

Giovanni Ansaldo, an Italian journalist, recently wrot a long piece on this subject. It was published in "Il Mattino" of Naples, and it has been widely copied and discussed throughout Italy.

One view is that Ansaldo was speaking only for himself and that his opinions do not represent the true feelings of the Italian government nor the Italian people. The other view is that he put his finger on some fundamental truths on which all Americans should ponder.

Why are Americans unpopular—not only in Italy, but all over Europe as well? The first reason, says Signor Ansaldo, is that "Americans are among us. They reveal to us our faults in such a way that we can see them well . . . Everyone of us has known at least one episode in which an American has cut an ugly figure. Following the law of generalization, each of us, on the basis of that one episode, judges America and the Americans.

"THE RUSSIANS, in comparison with the Americans, have an enormous practical advantage," the writer continues. "The Russians are not seen. Who knows a Russian? Nobody. It is therefore very easy for the western Europeans to attribute to the Russians all the virtues, based on the principle that man esteems above all what he does not see or know."

The second reason why Americans are unpopular, writes the Italian, is that, "Americans are rich—much richer than we are—and wealth makes one deprived of it envious . . . They eat better, dress better, smoke better. Every public appearance of an American is resented as a provocation and an offense.

"The Russians, from the beginning, found themselves in a far more advantageous situation. The relative poverty of the Russians, visible even in their armed corps, is in their favor in European opinion."

The third and most important reason for American unpopularity, according to the Ansaldo thesis, is that "They've tried to help the European people reconstruct Europe. To help your neighbor is a heartbreaking operation. Generally the benefactor is resented and is never forgiven.

"TODAY, FROM ONE END OF western Europe to another, there is no wretch half or more than half dressed and nourished by American loans and subsidies who does not say that America has done all that for its own filthy interest and deceitful ends . . .

"Here also the Russians extract an immense benefit. They haven't helped anyone for the good reason that they can't. Thus they have not offended European sensitivities.

"What can America do to change this situation?" asks Writer Ansaldo. "The means is very simple," he says: "Leave Europe. Not to be here any more. Not to show their wealth. Not to help anyone. . . .

"Will the Americans resort to this means? We guess not. But one point is sure. If they . . . would resort to that means, within a few months Americans would again be very 'simpatico.' And one would wait for them, hoping and praying that they would come back."

Steeple Leans to the North

The church of Alfriston, England, was originally built in a field called "The Seven Crofts." As a result of a severe hurricane the church steeple began to lean towards the north. Because of a dream by a parishioner, the structure was disassembled and transported to another field one mile away. In 1835 another severe hurricane struck the tower and it again leans toward the north.

Today in Washington

Guesses Only—No Actual Data—Are Made About How Congressional Vote Will Go

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 1 — Nearly every congressional election is a surprise—and this one will be no exception. That's because the public gets a picture which confuses what happens in a presidential election — where there are two candidates only — with a congressional election where there are this year at least 70 candidates for the Senate and several hundred candidates for the House.

Everybody is really guessing as to the outcome. No polls have been made in each of the districts and states that compare at all with the scientific sampling polls conducted during a presidential campaign.

The late Franklin D. Roosevelt used to say to callers that every congressional election in the middle of a presidential term was "local" and that it was not based on any national trend or any yardstick indicating the confidence or lack of confidence of the people in the policies of the President.

This correspondent has written about eleven of such off-year elections and in not one of them did the party managers themselves in their private estimates predict the outcome accurately. They sometimes felt confident of victory but it either was narrower or larger than they expected—they had no reliable means of advance measurement.

So this writer offers his own theory, which is that the congressional election will not result in the "landslide" for the Democrats widely predicted a month ago, but will be a close election in the sense that a few seats either way will decide the control of the Senate and the House of Representatives respectively. The biggest surprise of all would, of course, be the retention of control of both Houses by the Republicans.

How could such an unexpected result materialize? The answer lies in the study of national trends over the years. This is a little-noticed phase of the electorate's behavior often overlooked, as some observers insist on repeating the fallacy that President Eisenhower's feat in running ahead of his congressional ticket in 1952 was something unusual and due only to his popularity. The fact is that no overall percentage of the vote of either party for congressional candidates has ever been equal to that of the winning presidential candidate. Separate ballots or separate columns in the voting machines or unfamiliarity with the candidates' names are the main reasons.

The important thing to study is the upward or downward movement of the long-range trend of each party's strength. President Roosevelt's trend, which began in 1932, rose considerably in 1936. The unusual happened in the 1934 off-year election when the Democratic congressional trend actually went higher than two years before. This surprised everybody, including Mr. Roosevelt.

But 1936 was the peak, and the Democratic percentage of the total vote for Congress thereafter went steadily downward. This national percentage, restored in part on the Congress vote, was pushed up somewhat in presidential years, but was never restored to its high point of 1934.

The long-range trend of the Republicans started upward in a substantial way in 1952, and if the deep-seated resentments manifested against the Democratic party then are still present, the curve should logically stay where it is. The maintenance of such a trend might have been assured if the Republicans had reminded the voters of the issues which produced the negative trend against the Democrats in 1952. But the Republican high command, though repeatedly warned, mistakenly ignored those tactics until late in the congressional campaign when it finally started talking a good deal about "communism, corruption and Korea"—the basic issues which two years ago brought the anti-Truman verdict.

So the Democrats made the louder noise during 1953 and most of 1954. That's why the political writers have almost universally assumed that the Democrats were coming back into power.

Roosevelt and his brain trust whooped into Washington arm in arm with Communist traitors mainly drawn from New England, of all places. Then, after a program of squandering which permanently discredited the dollar as a standard of value and honor as a virtue, they set their minds to the problem of getting the United States into the war to destroy the enemies of Soviet Russia. In this way, they would "employ" all the manpower we had. They dragooned some 14 million men, mainly young fellows. In their indecent design on the morals of western civilization, they maneuvered to get as many young women as they could. This was a gross brutality because the unions were wasting civilian manpower at the rate of 5,000 strikes a year in "war industries" alone, notwithstanding a "pledge" by Phil Murray and William Green

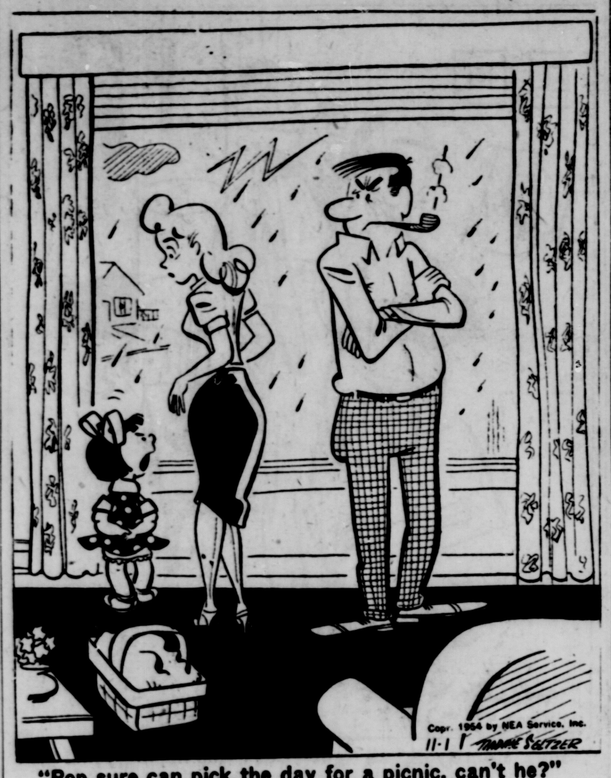
SWEETY PIE By NADINE SELTZER



"Pop sure can pick the day for a picnic, can't he?"

Circus Auld Lang Syne

By FRANK TRIPP

A circus friend, a musician in a circus band for years, wrote me something a long time ago that I've kept on ice too long already. It's about the good-byes at the closing of a circus season. Here's the way Phil Wright wrote it:

It is November and Dailey Brothers Circus is closing its season in Seguin, Texas. All day long a cloud has hovered around the show. The pad tent (dressing tent) was quiet, even through the penny-ante sessions between shows.

The labor gangs were going about their daily chores of bringing 'em in, putting 'em up and taking 'em down. The night show went on as usual. The last act was trimmed down. As it neared the final cue a stillness settled over the big top. There was a slight pause and the band broke into "Auld Lang Syne." All was relaxed; no town to make tomorrow.

WEATHER-BEATEN troupers, faces seamed like old salts, started shaking hands and swallowed like they had watermelons in their throats. Many were the guys, from the little two bit grifter up front to the big shots in the dough, who had taken one too many—for a reason. The show was closing.

A little girl stopped by the back door as she went to the pad tent. It was her first season out. All of her family were show people. She was saying:

"It has all been so wonderful, Joe. It can't end now, it mustn't, it can't Joe. I—I—I—" With that she burst into tears, and let go. Woman eternal, 13-year-old woman.

JOE WAS still in his clown makeup. He was an old-timer, had lived through many Auld Lang 'Synes. He put his arm around the little girl and said:

"It's all right, kid. don't feel bad; we always have these Home Sweet Homes. You just gotta get used to it." Her mother nodded Joe a tearful "thank you" and led the child away.

In the middle of the big top, a long lean bull man called "Hungry" waited with his bull (elephant) for the last rites and the final takedown. Hungry stood with his head close up to the bull's ear, his hand patting the big trunk.

It was swinging slowly to and fro, then wound around Hungry's waist to embrace him, as good elephants do.

As the last strains of the farewell number died away, Hungry and the bull did their stunt. He tapped the quarter poles with the handle of his bull hook and the bull pushed out the poles where they could be taken down and loaded on the pole wagons. The last time down till next season.

EVEN THE ELEPHANTS seemed to know that something was different. The band was paid off; the leader said: "You've been swell, you've been gentlemen and you all are set for next season if you want the job. So long, good luck, till next year."

In the sleepers the aisles were cluttered with trunks and boxes. The show was packing—to go home. But were we going home, or leaving it? It's hard to tell which is home to a trouper with the song of the circut in his heart.

Be seeing you soon. Till then, same address: Care Billboard, Cincinnati. Regards. P.J.W.

I'VE BEEN in on the good-byes of a lot of show closings and I know just what Phil meant. It made me homesick for the good and true people of the world of make-believe.

There's no make-believe in their loyalties, generosity and, tolerance. No people on earth accept others more at their true worth; no people are less selfish and, in their own misunderstood ways, none more reverent.

It's too bad that the wayward among them get the big headlines and smear a profession that by and large will stack above average with all humanity.

By means of tape recording, His appeal for a dollar because he "lost his family in the flood that followed the overflowing of the Mississippi River" struck the lady as not exactly original.

Woman—Aren't you the same man who came around here last year with a tale about losing your family in the Florida flood?

Beggar—Yes, mum. Ain't I unlucky? If you'll give me a dollar I'll have just enough to get me a second-hand rowboat.

All teachers interested in going on this tour should contact Dr. Donald S. Allen, chairman, Division of Natural Science, State University Teachers College, New Paltz.

290 Adults Register For New Classes

New Paltz, Nov. 1—The Adult Education Program at New Paltz High School got underway last week with unprecedented success. A total of 290 adults attended the first meeting of the classes. This adult registration is well above the daytime enrollment of the high school and illustrates once more the expanding role of the school in the modern community.

Fredrick C. Dipple, director of Adult Education, announces that it is still not too late to join most of the classes. There have been several requests for a class in home nursing and first aid. Anyone interested in such a class should send their name, address and telephone number into the high school and if a sufficient number of names is received an instructor will be secured, and the class started.

The new Adult Education course, Law Everyone Should Know, had as its speaker Wednesday night District Attorney Howard C. St. John of Kingston. He spoke to the group on the general topic of Criminal Law and included such points of interest as who has the right to arrest, what the procedure is, what rights does the arrested person have, some of the various crimes and courtroom procedure in criminal cases. After his lecture, members of the class were given an opportunity to ask him questions.

PFO Invites Parents To Nov. 9 Open House

New Paltz, Nov. 1—A meeting of the executive committee of the Parent Faculty Organization was held Oct. 26 at the home of Dr. George Thomas. Plans were made for the all-school meeting which will be held Tuesday, Nov. 9. This is to be an open house meeting. Children will be asked to bring their parents to their classrooms to meet their teacher and see samples of their work which will be exhibited. Open house will be held from 7:30 until 9 p. m. and will be followed by a short business meeting.

Mr. Buchanan gave a report on the PFO budget which will be submitted to parents at the all-school meeting. It was decided to recommend that the sum of money originally intended for the purchase of a display case should be used instead to buy instruments for the school music program. Mrs. Jacobson and Dr. Thomas reported that the school dental program, which in the past has been shared by four schools, may not be available this year. It was decided to recommend that, if this should happen, the PFO should underwrite one half the cost of providing such a program for the Campus School. The Campus School Guild has already promised to take care of the other half of the expenses.

Dr. Thomas announced that arrangements have been made with Herrick's Marionette Group of Kingston to present an all-school assembly for the children in February. This is the assembly which the PFO voted to present for the children. Mrs. George Bond reported on the progress of the Book Fair Committee. Chairmen have been obtained for most of the sub-committees. The Book Fair will be held in the school library Nov. 16 to 19.

Book Fair Is Slated Nov. 16-19 at School

New Paltz, Nov. 1 — More than 1,000 books will be displayed during the annual Book Fair Nov. 16-19 at the Campus School Library. Fiction, non-fiction, picture books and classics will be included.

Chairman of the fair committee is Mrs. George Bond. Her assistants include Mrs. Clifford Van Valkenburgh, inventory; Mrs. Louis Salkever, display and posters; Mrs. John Jacobson, sales and Miss Ruth Walker, faculty representative.

Mrs. Keith Smiley is organizing a group of junior high students who will form a junior sales committee.

Townsend, president, presided at the business meeting following the dinner and thanked the ladies for the fine dinner they had prepared. The guest speaker of the evening was Frederick Snyder of Kingston. Invocation was by the Rev. Walter VanPopering and benediction by the Rev. William Irish.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Knights of Pythias Tuesday evening the members enjoyed a pancake and sausage supper prepared by Daniel Van Alst and Walter Smith. At the business meeting following the supper Walter Smith and Lester Mack were appointed as a committee to purchase new equipment for the lodge rooms. It was announced that at the next meeting Lester Maek will entertain the members with pictures of big game hunting in the Rocky Mountains.

Potter's team gained two games in the pinochle tournament. The tournament will end at next week's meeting.

Experts Do Usually Work Miracles

One of the embarrassing things about being a good player is that your partner sometimes expects you to work miracles. In today's hand, for example, North overbid rather badly because he knew that the South hand was going to be played by an expert—Col. R. H. Skinner, of Alton Bay, N. H.

If West had let a spade there would have been no miracle, for the defenders would have taken two spades and two trumps to defeat the contract. West actually made the very normal lead of the queen of diamonds, which gave Colonel Skinner a chance to make the ambitious contract.

Opening lead—♦ Q

Try it yourself. You win the first trick, of course, and you see at a glance that you can't afford to lead trumps. The opponents would obviously take two trumps and two spades. Hence you begin by running the three top clubs in order to discard a losing spade. What next?

Perhaps you think that it is now time to lead a trump? If so, East wins the first trump trick with the king or queen, cashes the ace of spades, and then leads the ten of clubs. West can overruff you with the ace of trumps, and the defenders therefore make three trump tricks and one spade to defeat the contract.

Dick Skinner saw this danger and therefore didn't lead the trumps prematurely. After running three top clubs to discard a losing spade, he continued with a fourth club to discard his other losing spade.

This simple play was very effective. East won a trick with his ten of clubs, but the defenders could then get only two trump tricks. When East led a spade, Colonel Skinner ruffed and led a trump. No matter what the defenders did, declarer could win the return and lead a second round of trumps.

There was no further problem, since there were still two trumps in the dummy to take care of the two low diamonds in the South hand.

Squirrels eat nuts — they also store them in tree holes. Squirrels are savers—not wasters. Not interested in dollars—just nuts. Something to sink their teeth in when their innards feel hollow-like. Just nuts — something that will keep — keep.

Mr. Hutton

A squirrel is not a liberal, but a conservative. The spunky little critter conserves nuts.

One day he sat and looked at me. He knew I was worried. He didn't pretend to offer sympathy. He spat out one word—nuts!

He had never heard a politician promise—ease without effort, wealth without work, Government "security" without sweat.

There he sat as happy and busy as all get-out.

I thought of all the schemes of Government, loans and "security" — guaranteed by debt.

Are you interested, comrade squirrel? "Can you eat it? If not, I'll stick to nuts."

He got me thinking about the "Ma and Pa Government" to care and provide for us. But the Government hasn't a thin dime of its own. WE must give from our toil the moneys they take from us to provide for us. And that's not legal tender in the squirrel business at all!

Neighbor, why not start to lay away some nuts?

Harry C. France

More than 25 years ago a real estate boom descended upon Florida. Young men and old men got caught up in its enthusiasm. A sales manager of my acquaintance quit a good $25,000 a year job in New York to join the prosperity - contagious battalions operating there.

At one time his paper profits ran into the millions. He was spread out thin in two counties. But the day of reckoning came, he sent me a wire: "Will you please send me transportation back to New York?"

A responsible busines man in his late 60's mortgaged New York City property for $200,000 to get into the swim. When his estate was settled ten years ago this debt hung heavily on his limited remaining assets.

Even today repercusions of this boom frequently float in. It did the state a lot of harm; yet in its highest bloom it promised to do much good.

HISTORY, I THINK, is repeating itself. The uranium boom is much more widespread than this real estate boom was. It has caught the fancy of millions of people. Many of them are sinking money in penny uranium shares that should be in savings banks, in insurance policies or in sound securities.

The real value behind many of these uranium shares is more ethereal than were sections of subdivisions in the land boom of the twenties that later proved to be worthless.

Where are the earnings coming from to justify valuations running into the millions of dollars? Yes, like the Florida boom, some enterprises will pay out and perhaps handsomely. But today's enthusiasm for the uranium shares (entered into by so many gullible people) is all out of reason.

As a matter of fact, atomic energy is still some years away as a reliable source of investment income. Furthermore, the big American corporations that today are carrying on important research and development work in this field for the United States Government are earning virtually nothing on their operations.

Why are they doing it? For the same reason that Thomas Edison carried on his great work—to further economic and social progress in America.

I write of this now because I am deluged with inquiries about investment opportunities in the uranium and atomic energy fields.

The stocks to buy are not the penny shares of promotional enterprises. If an investor has the capital and the patience to buy into long-range values, the shares to buy are those of the billion-dollar companies which today are carrying on Uncle Sam's important work.

And to save answering a flood of fan mail, I will name six of these companies: American Telephone and Telegraph; du Pont; General Electric; Union Carbide; Phillips Petroleum and Procter and Gamble.

If any reading investor feels he must invest in atomic energy stocks, it is my opinion he would be far better off to risk some capital in the seasoned stocks than in the boom shares of untried, promotional companies.

THE FORUM. (Q) "I am saving $1,000 a year. What plan of investment would you suggest?"

(A) Here are two plans:

(1) Sign a contract with a good organization under which your monthly savings would be invested in good securities.

(2) Put your money in a savings bank until you have $1,000. Then withdraw it and buy two or three seasoned stocks.

Harry C. France will answer one letter each week through the column. If you have any investment questions, write in care of this newspaper.

At one time his paper profits ran into the millions. He was spread out thin in two counties. But the day of reckoning came, he sent me a wire: "Will you please send me transportation back to New York?"

A responsible busines man in his late 60's mortgaged New York City property for $200,000 to get into the swim. When his estate was settled ten years ago this debt hung heavily on his limited remaining assets.

Even today repercusions of this boom frequently float in. It did the state a lot of harm; yet in its highest bloom it promised to do much good.

HISTORY, I THINK, is repeating itself. The uranium boom is much more widespread than this real estate boom was. It has caught the fancy of millions of people. Many of them are sinking money in penny uranium shares that should be in savings banks, in insurance policies or in sound securities.

The real value behind many of these uranium shares is more ethereal than were sections of subdivisions in the land boom of the twenties that later proved to be worthless.

Where are the earnings coming from to justify valuations running into the millions of dollars? Yes, like the Florida boom, some enterprises will pay out and perhaps handsomely. But today's enthusiasm for the uranium shares (entered into by so many gullible people) is all out of reason.

As a matter of fact, atomic energy is still some years away as a reliable source of investment income. Furthermore, the big American corporations that today are carrying on important research and development work in this field for the United States Government are earning virtually nothing on their operations.

Why are they doing it? For the same reason that Thomas Edison carried on his great work—to further economic and social progress in America.

I write of this now because I am deluged with inquiries about investment opportunities in the uranium and atomic energy fields.

The stocks to buy are not the penny shares of promotional enterprises. If an investor has the capital and the patience to buy into long-range values, the shares to buy are those of the billion-dollar companies which today are carrying on Uncle Sam's important work.

And to save answering a flood of fan mail, I will name six of these companies: American Telephone and Telegraph; du Pont; General Electric; Union Carbide; Phillips Petroleum and Procter and Gamble.

If any reading investor feels he must invest in atomic energy stocks, it is my opinion he would be far better off to risk some capital in the seasoned stocks than in the boom shares of untried, promotional companies.

THE FORUM. (Q) "I am saving $1,000 a year. What plan of investment would you suggest?"

(A) Here are two plans:

(1) Sign a contract with a good organization under which your monthly savings would be invested in good securities.

(2) Put your money in a savings bank until you have $1,000. Then withdraw it and buy two or three seasoned stocks.

Harry C. France will answer one letter each week through the column. If you have any investment questions, write in care of this newspaper.

Dixie Rebellion Is Ended For GOP; Bloc Solid Again

By DON WHITEHEAD

Washington, Nov. 1 (AP)—The Dixie political rebellion of 1952 that raised GOP hopes for a strong two-party system in the south is just a happy memory for Republicans today.

Southern voters in 11 states without a shadow of doubt will deliver to the Democrats in Tuesday's election a block of 11 Senate seats and around 100 out of 106 House seats—or almost one-fourth of the 37 senators and 432 representatives to be elected.

THE 1952 REVOLT which saw President Eisenhower sweep Virginia, Florida, Texas and Tennessee into the GOP presidential column didn't extend very far below the presidential level—but nevertheless it was cause for speculation at the time that a shift in the south's voting pattern was in the making.

But the tumult is over. The Democratic leadership has the old-shoe comfort of knowing in advance almost precisely what to expect from the south.

The only Democratic concern of any degree lies in Virginia, Tennessee and North Carolina where the Republicans hold their six Dixie House seats and in Florida where two GOP candidates are making strong bids to unseat Democratic incumbents. Reports from Associated Press correspondents in the south indicate the Republicans are in danger of losing perhaps two of the six House seats they now hold.

IN GEORGIA and Louisiana, the segregation issue is dominating elections rather than fights between Republicans and Democrats. In both states, the people will vote on state constitutional amendments designed to continue segregation of white and Negro students in grade and high schools, a practice which has been declared unconstitutional by the U. S. Supreme Court.

In South Carolina, attention is focused on the Democrats' internal uproar over the election of a U. S. senator.

This fight was touched off when the State Democratic Executive Committee named State Sen. Edgar A. Brown as the party's nominee to succeed the late Sen. Burnet R. Maybank instead of calling for the election of a nominee by primary vote.

BROWN IS BEING opposed by two write-in candidates, former Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, who ran for the presidency in 1948 on the States' Right ticket, and Marcus A. Stone.

Gov. James F. Byrnes has thrown his support to Thurmond and reports from South Carolina are that Thurmond has a good chance.

Regardless of the outcome, the state's new senator will be a Democrat.

In sectional power and prestige, a Democratic Congress would mean much to the southern group represented by Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia—more than to any other region.

IT WOULD MEAN that Texas' Rep. Sam Rayburn would return to the speakership of the House and Texas' Sen. Lyndon Johnson to the majority leadership in the Senate. It also would mean that southerners would take over because of their seniority the chairmanships of about half the important committees of Congress which shape the nation's legislative program.

The brightest ray for the Republicans in the south is the report they have a fighting chance to capture two House seats in Florida. A good many Republicans from the north and midwest have retired and settled in Florida to become an important influence in the state's elections.

Here's a state-by-state appraisal of the southern political situation as reported by Associated Press correspondents:

ALABAMA: Elects one U. S. senator, nine House members and a governor.

Sen. John J. Sparkman, Democratic candidate for vice president in 1952, appears to have only token opposition from Republican J. Foy Guin. Only two of the state's nine Democratic House candidates have opposition.

ARKANSAS: Elects one U. S. senator, six House members and a governor.

Sen. John J. McClellan is unopposed. The Republicans didn't put up candidates in the House races either.

FLODIDA: Elects eight House members and a governor.

The congressional battlefields are in the 1st (Tampa-St. Petersburg) and the 7th (Sarasota) Districts.

The 1st district race between Democrat Courtney W. Campbell and Republican William C. Cramer is a rematch of the 1952 contest in which Campbell won 69,149 to 67,286. Cramer is campaigning on a "Down the Line With Eisenhower" platform and he's had campaign help from John Roosevelt.

In the 7th District, Republican E. B. (Smokey) Sutton is given just about an even chance of unseating Democratic Rep. James A. Haley. Sutton, a former power in Democratic politics, is a recent GOP convert and some observers say a Sutton victory would be more of a personal popularity triumph than a real victory for the GOP.

However, the Democratic incumbents are slight favorites in both contests.

GEORGIA: Elects one U. S. senator, 10 House members and a governor.

Sen. Russell will be returned to the Senate without opposition and only one House candidate is opposed. Charles A. Moye, Jr., Decatur attorney, opposes Rep. James C. Davis, Democrat. Davis is expected to be elected easily.

LOUISIANA: Elects one U. S. senator and eight House members.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender is to be elected without opposition and there is only one contest in the House races. Democratic Rep. F. Edward Hebert is being opposed by Republican George Reese in the 1st district.

MISSISSIPPI: Elects one U. S. senator and six House members.

Sen. James O. Eastland has little more than token opposition from Republican James White. All House candidates are unopposed.

NORTH CAROLINA: Elects two U. S. senators and 12 House members.

Democrat W. Kerr Scott, a former governor, is expected to win easily over Republican Paul C. West for the full term. Democratic Sen. Sam J. Ervin is unoppsed for the two years remaining in the term of the late Sen. Clyde Hoey.

Main congressional fights are in the 9th and 10th districts. The 10th is held by Republican Rep. Charles R. Jonas. Democrats are waging a strong campaign to replace Jonas with Democrat J. C. Sedberry, judge of the Municipal Court at Charlotte, largest city in the district. But Jonas is popular and this one is a fight.

In the 9th, Republicans are hopeful because in 1952 they came colse to beating Rep. Hugh Q. Alexander and now they have a strong candidate in William E. Stevens Jr., who is waging a hard hand-shaking campaign aided by his attractive wife.

SOUTH CAROLINA: Elects one U. S. senator, six House members and a governor.

The big interest centers on the Brown-Thurmond contest which has the Democrats apparently as divided as they were in the 1952 presidential race when Stevenson carried the state only by a slim margin over Eisenhower.

Brown's nomination stirred a bitter fight which still is seething. But Brown would appear to be in the stronger position and his camp is predicting he'll carry every county in the state.

The Republicans have candidates seeking five of the six House seats but a Democratic sweep is forecast as usual.

TENNESSEE: Elects one U. S. senator, nine House members and a governor. Sen. Estes Kefauver is a heavy favorite over Republican candidate Thomas P. Wall Jr.

The Republicans are expected to hold onto their only two House seats, now held by Reps. J. Carroll Reece (1st district) and Howard Baker (2nd district). The Democrats are throwing their heaviest guns against Baker, who is opposed by Knox County Judge C. Howard Bozeman. But Baker is regarded as the favorite, and Reese is reported in no serious trouble.

TEXAS: Elects one U. S. senator, 21 House members, and a governor.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, Senate minority leader, is certain to swamp his GOP opponent, Carlos G. Watson. The state's House bloc is expected to remain solidly Democratic.

VIRGINIA: Elects one U. S. Senator and 10 House members.

Sen. A. Willis Robertson is seen as an easy victor over Charles W. Lewis, Jr., Independent Democrat, and Clarke T. Robb, Social Democrat.

The real fight lies in the Democratic bid to regain the 9th and 10th District House seats now held by Republican Reps. William C. Wampler and Joel T. Broyhill.

Both parties have sent their big brass campaigning into the southwestern 9th District where Wampler is opposed by Democratic Sheriff Pat Jennings of Marion. Jennings has hit hard on the issues of lower cattle prices and coal mine unemployment. Wampler has used an "Ike Wants Wampler" slogan.

One puzzling factor in the 9th is the candidacy of Evangelist John W. Sullivan, running as an independent. Observers say the votes Sullivan will get will be largely Democratic and a few thousand of them would hurt Jennings. Sullivan recently accepted a pastorate in Norfolk, Va., but said he would remain in the campaign to the end.

The 10th district lies just across the Potomac from Washington, and the Democrats say Eisenhower's veto of a federal pay raise bill has caused enough defection among federal workers to unseat Broyhill. He is opposed by John C. Webb, a freshman member of the State House of Delegates.

Both these races are expected to be close. Republican chances look good, observers say, for Rep. Richard H. Poff to hold his seat in the 6th District against Democrat Ernest Robertson.

THE MARQUEE

T.V. — STAGE — RADIO — RECORDS — PEOPLE

By DICK KLEINER

THE RECORD SHOP: This has been a bang-up year for trends in the record business. It started, if you remember that far back, with the calypso trend. Then came the rhythm and blues trend. Now we're up to our swaying hips in mambos. And coming, if my trend-spotter is working, is the big voice trend.

Mario Lanza was the last big voice to make a record name. Currently, all the labels are knocking themselves out to find big voices. London was the first to cash in with "Cara Mia," sung by David Whitfield. Columbia has a great new voice in Val Valente. And the others are following.

"Play it louder," said Mickey Spillane.

And he leaned back and closed his eyes, as the music grew louder. They were playing the first "Mike Hammer" record, a new Columbia album that Mickey helped write. Spillane created Hammer, the private black-eye.

He explained the record as it went along. One side has two short episodes in the Mike Hammer case-book, with Spillane cast as Hammer. The other side is original music which attempts to portray Hammer and his methods in musical terms.

"This here," said Spillane, "is Mike and a gal. Listen, he's spotted her. They go up to his place."

There was an exciting rhythm, trumpets wailing, drums thumping.

"He closes the door. He takes the key. He puts it in his pocket."

Louder wailing, stronger thumping.

"Now they're going around the table. Now he's got her."

And Spillane smiled. I suppose his pupils dilated, just like in the books, but I wouldn't know a dilated pupil if I fell over it.

There were other themes—a song for Mike, a song for his gal friend, and more. Through them all there was a powerful rhythmic beat, exciting, almost cruel. Spillane thinks they're pretty good represenations of his creations.

Spillane is a chunky man, with close-cropped hair and big hands. His tie was open and his shirt sleeves were rolled up and he sipped ginger ale from a paper container. He likes music and plays the piano.

"I used to play a pretty good trumpet," he said, "until somebody threw a bottle and knocked out three teeth. No more trumpet."

I speculated on what happened to the bottle-thrower, but I figured discretion was the better part of reporting, so I didn't ask.

The gal singers are discovering a new way to make money — endorsing products, a field formerly limited to Hollywood glamor gals and the cream of society. Patti Page has a doll to tie in with her latest record, "The Mama Doll Song," and Sunny Gale's name soon will appear on a line of rainwear. Mary Ford (Mrs. Les Paul) will promote a certain automobile—one guess which one—and others are set to get in on the act.

HEALTH FOR ALL

NOW IN NOVEMER

We might as well face it. We may have a few of those crisp, bright days that fool us into thinking winter won't be so bad this year. But it will. Now in November begins the triumphal march of the common cold.

Wherever as many as three people are gathered, there will be at least one sneeze, one sniffle, or one cough. And that one will soon be multiplied many times. It's all very well to advise people to avoid gatherings in order to avoid colds. Few of us can or want to follow the advice. The children must go to school. The breadwinner must take the crowded bus or streetcar to work. Church, club meetings, parties, movies — the American people aren't going to stay home till spring comes.

Then what can we do to prevent the round robin of colds from making this winter a season of misery? In the first place, no salve, nose drop, gargle, laxative, vitamin pill, or vaccine on the market can be depended on to prevent or cure the common cold. There's hope, but meantime the advice of the medical profession is to save your money. Or better, spend it to make sure your family gets a balanced diet containing the protective foods. See that they get enough sleep, rest, and recreation to help ward off infection. At least try to keep them in warm, dry clothes.

There are a few reasonable steps to avoid contagion. Stay as far away as possible from people you know have colds. • Never share drinking or eating utensils, towels or toilet articles. Wash the hands well with soap or water before eating or handling food.

If, in spite of all precautions, you do catch cold, play safe and take a day of rest, preferably in bed. If any member of the family seems to have frequent colds, consult the doctor. The trouble may be an allergy or some other condition that can be corrected.

Dixie Rebellion Is Ended For GOP; Bloc Solid Again

By DON WHITEHEAD

Washington, Nov. 1 (AP)—The Dixie political rebellion of 1952 that raised GOP hopes for a strong two-party system in the south is just a happy memory for Republicans today.

Southern voters in 11 states without a shadow of doubt will deliver to the Democrats in Tuesday's election a block of 11 Senate seats and around 100 out of 106 House seats—or almost one-fourth of the 37 senators and 432 representatives to be elected.

THE 1952 REVOLT which saw President Eisenhower sweep Virginia, Florida, Texas and Tennessee into the GOP presidential column didn't extend very far below the presidential level—but nevertheless it was cause for speculation at the time that a shift in the south's voting pattern was in the making.

But the tumult is over. The Democratic leadership has the old-shoe comfort of knowing in advance almost precisely what to expect from the south.

The only Democratic concern of any degree lies in Virginia, Tennessee and North Carolina where the Republicans hold their six Dixie House seats and in Florida where two GOP candidates are making strong bids to unseat Democratic incumbents. Reports from Associated Press correspondents in the south indicate the Republicans are in danger of losing perhaps two of the six House seats they now hold.

IN GEORGIA and Louisiana, the segregation issue is dominating elections rather than fights between Republicans and Democrats. In both states, the people will vote on state constitutional amendments designed to continue segregation of white and Negro students in grade and high schools, a practice which has been declared unconstitutional by the U. S. Supreme Court.

In South Carolina, attention is focused on the Democrats' internal uproar over the election of a U. S. senator.

This fight was touched off when the State Democratic Executive Committee named State Sen. Edgar A. Brown as the party's nominee to succeed the late Sen. Burnet R. Maybank instead of calling for the election of a nominee by primary vote.

BROWN IS BEING opposed by two write-in candidates, former Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, who ran for the presidency in 1948 on the States' Right ticket, and Marcus A. Stone.

Gov. James F. Byrnes has thrown his support to Thurmond and reports from South Carolina are that Thurmond has a good chance.

Regardless of the outcome, the state's new senator will be a Democrat.

In sectional power and prestige, a Democratic Congress would mean much to the southern group represented by Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia—more than to any other region.

IT WOULD MEAN that Texas' Rep. Sam Rayburn would return to the speakership of the House and Texas' Sen. Lyndon Johnson to the majority leadership in the Senate. It also would mean that southerners would take over because of their seniority the chairmanships of about half the important committees of Congress which shape the nation's legislative program.

The brightest ray for the Republicans in the south is the report they have a fighting chance to capture two House seats in Florida. A good many Republicans from the north and midwest have retired and settled in Florida to become an important influence in the state's elections.

Here's a state-by-state appraisal of the southern political situation as reported by Associated Press correspondents:

ALABAMA: Elects one U. S. senator, nine House members and a governor.

Sen. John J. Sparkman, Democratic candidate for vice president in 1952, appears to have only token opposition from Republican J. Foy Guin. Only two of the state's nine Democratic House candidates have opposition.

ARKANSAS: Elects one U. S. senator, six House members and a governor.

Sen. John J. McClellan is unopposed. The Republicans didn't put up candidates in the House races either.

FLODIDA: Elects eight House members and a governor.

The congressional battlefields are in the 1st (Tampa-St. Petersburg) and the 7th (Sarasota) Districts.

The 1st district race between Democrat Courtney W. Campbell and Republican William C. Cramer is a rematch of the 1952 contest in which Campbell won 69,149 to 67,286. Cramer is campaigning on a "Down the Line With Eisenhower" platform and he's had campaign help from John Roosevelt.

In the 7th District, Republican E. B. (Smokey) Sutton is given just about an even chance of unseating Democratic Rep. James A. Haley. Sutton, a former power in Democratic politics, is a recent GOP convert and some observers say a Sutton victory would be more of a personal personal popularity triumph than a real victory for the GOP.

However, the Democratic incumbents are slight favorites in both contests.

GEORGIA: Elects one U. S. senator, 10 House members and a governor.

Sen. Russell will be returned to the Senate without opposition and only one House candidate is opposed. Charles A. Moye, Jr., Decatur attorney, opposes Rep. James C. Davis, Democrat. Davis is expected to be elected easily.

LOUISIANA: Elects one U. S. senator and eight House members.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender is to be elected without opposition and there is only one contest in the House races. Democratic Rep. F. Edward Hebert is being opposed by Republican George Reese in the 1st district.

MISSISSIPPI: Elects one U. S. senator and six House members.

Sen. James O. Eastland has little more than token opposition from Republican James White. All House candidates are unopposed.

NORTH CAROLINA: Elects two U. S. senators and 12 House members.

Democrat W. Kerr Scott, a former governor, is expected to win easily over Republican Paul C. West for the full term. Democratic Sen. Sam J. Ervin is unoppsed for the two years remaining in the term of the late Sen. Clyde Hoey.

Main congressional fights are in the 9th and 10th districts. The 10th is held by Republican Rep. Charles R. Jonas. Democrats are waging a strong campaign to replace Jonas with Democrat J. C. Sedberry, judge of the Municipal Court at Charlotte, largest city in the district. But Jonas is popular and this one is a fight.

In the 9th, Republicans are hopeful because in 1952 they came colse to beating Rep. Hugh Q. Alexander and now they have a strong candidate in William E. Stevens Jr., who is waging a hard hand-shaking campaign aided by his attractive wife.

SOUTH CAROLINA: Elects one U. S. senator, six House members and a governor.

The big interest centers on the Brown-Thurmond contest which has the Democrats apparently as divided as they were in the 1952 presidential race when Stevenson carried the state only by a slim margin over Eisenhower.

Brown's nomination stirred a bitter fight which still is seething. But Brown would appear to be in the stronger position and his camp is predicting he'll carry every county in the state.

The Republicans have candidates seeking five of the six House seats but a Democratic sweep is forecast as usual.

TENNESSEE: Elects one U. S. senator, nine House members and a governor. Sen. Estes Kefauver is a heavy favorite over Republican candidate Thomas P. Wall Jr.

The Republicans are expected to hold onto their only two House seats, now held by Reps. J. Carroll Reece (1st district) and Howard Baker (2nd district). The Democrats are throwing their heaviest guns against Baker, who is opposed by Knox County Judge C. Howard Bozeman. But Baker is regarded as the favorite, and Reese is reported in no serious trouble.

TEXAS: Elects one U. S. senator, 21 House members, and a governor.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, Senate minority leader, is certain to swamp his GOP opponent, Carlos G. Watson. The state's House bloc is expected to remain solidly Democratic.

VIRGINIA: Elects one U. S. Senator and 10 House members.

Sen. A. Willis Robertson is seen as an easy victor over Charles W. Lewis, Jr., Independent Democrat, and Clarke T. Robb, Social Democrat.

The real fight lies in the Democratic bid to regain the 9th and 10th District House seats now held by Republican Reps. William C. Wampler and Joel T. Broyhill.

Both parties have sent their big brass campaigning into the southwestern 9th District where Wampler is opposed by Democratic Sheriff Pat Jennings of Marion. Jennings has hit hard on the issues of lower cattle prices and coal mine unemployment. Wampler has used an "Ike Wants Wampler" slogan.

One puzzling factor in the 9th is the candidacy of Evangelist John W. Sullivan, running as an independent. Observers say the votes Sullivan will get will be largely Democratic and a few thousand of them would hurt Jennings. Sullivan recently accepted a pastorate in Norfolk, Va., but said he would remain in the campaign to the end.

The 10th district lies just across the Potomac from Washington, and the Democrats say Eisenhower's veto of a federal pay raise bill has caused enough defection among federal workers to unseat Broyhill. He is opposed by John C. Webb, a freshman member of the State House of Delegates.

Both these races are expected to be close. Republican chances look good, observers say, for Rep. Richard H. Poff to hold his seat in the 6th District against Democrat Ernest Robertson.

THE MARQUEE

T.V. — STAGE — RADIO — RECORDS — PEOPLE

By DICK KLEINER

THE RECORD SHOP: This has been a bang-up year for trends in the record business. It started, if you remember that far back, with the calypso trend. Then came the rhythm and blues trend. Now we're up to our swaying hips in mambos. And coming, if my trend-spotter is working, is the big voice trend.

Mario Lanza was the last big voice to make a record name. Currently, all the labels are knocking themselves out to find big voices. London was the first to cash in with "Cara Mia," sung by David Whitfield. Columbia has a great new voice in Val Valente. And the others are following.

"Play it louder," said Mickey Spillane.

And he leaned back and closed his eyes, as the music grew louder. They were playing the first "Mike Hammer" record, a new Columbia album that Mickey helped write. Spillane created Hammer, the private black-eye.

He explained the record as it went along. One side has two short episodes in the Mike Hammer case-book, with Spillane cast as Hammer. The other side is original music which attempts to portray Hammer and his methods in musical terms.

"This here," said Spillane, "is Mike and a gal. Listen, he's spotted her. They go up to his place."

There was an exciting rhythm, trumpets wailing, drums thumping.

"He closes the door. He takes the key. He puts it in his pocket."

Louder wailing, stronger thumping.

"Now they're going around the table. Now he's got her."

And Spillane smiled. I suppose his pupils dilated, just like in the books, but I wouldn't know a dilated pupil if I fell over it.

There were other themes—a song for Mike, a song for his gal friend, and more. Through them all there was a powerful rhythmic beat, exciting, almost cruel. Spillane thinks they're pretty good represenations of his creations.

Spillane is a chunky man, with close-cropped hair and big hands. His tie was open and his shirt sleeves were rolled up and he sipped ginger ale from a paper container. He likes music and plays the piano.

"I used to play a pretty good trumpet," he said, "until somebody threw a bottle and knocked out three teeth. No more trumpet."

I speculated on what happened to the bottle-thrower, but I figured discretion was the better part of reporting, so I didn't ask.

The gal singers are discovering a new way to make money — endorsing products, a field formerly limited to Hollywood glamor gals and the cream of society. Patti Page has a doll to tie in with her latest record, "The Mama Doll Song," and Sunny Gale's name soon will appear on a line of rainwear. Mary Ford (Mrs. Les Paul) will promote a certain automobile—one guess which one—and others are set to get in on the act.

HEALTH FOR ALL

NOW IN NOVEMER

We might as well face it. We may have a few of those crisp, bright days that fool us into thinking winter won't be so bad this year. But it will. Now in November begins the triumphal march of the common cold.

Wherever as many as three people are gathered, there will be at least one sneeze, one sniffle, or one cough. And that one will soon be multiplied many times. It's all very well to advise people to avoid gatherings in order to avoid colds. Few of us can or want to follow the advice. The children must go to school. The breadwinner must take the crowded bus or streetcar to work. Church, club meetings, parties, movies — the American people aren't going to stay home till spring comes.

Then what can we do to prevent the round robin of colds from making this winter a season of misery? In the first place, no salve, nose drop, gargle, laxative, vitamin pill, or vaccine on the market can be depended on to prevent or cure the common cold. There's hope, but meantime the advice of the medical profession is to save your money. Or better, spend it to make sure your family gets a balanced diet containing the protective foods. See that they get enough sleep, rest, and recreation to help ward off infection. At least try to keep them in warm, dry clothes.

There are a few reasonable steps to avoid contagion. Stay as far away as possible from people you know have colds. Never share drinking or eating utensils, towels or toilet articles. Wash the hands well with soap or water before eating or handling food.

If, in spite of all precautions, you do catch cold, play safe and take a day of rest, preferably in bed. If any member of the family seems to have frequent colds, consult the doctor. The trouble may be an allergy or some other condition that can be corrected.

The Mature Parent

Aging Parents Often Unveil Hungers Hidden for Years

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Mrs. F.'s parents have been unhappily married. Her working mother has been "head of the family," her father the dependent. Now that retirement has reduced her mother's income, she has suddenly become a bitter woman.

She complains constantly about the past cruelties of her life. Often, she gets so involved in them that she insults her husband before his grandchildren.

Mrs. F. writes: "The children are beginning to dislike her. How can I stop her?"

What is her mother using these complaints to say to Mrs. F.? I think she may be saying:

"Please admire me. Admiration is my life. Up to now I've been able to get it by supporting your father. By contrasting his weakness with my strength, I have got people to think, 'My, what a fine woman.'

"But now my reduced income has reduced my supply of admiration. I am starving for it. So I have to come to your house every day to remind you of my past strength by reminding you of the cruelties it survived. I am reduced to pleading with you for admiration by complaining."

Such a confession of dependence should move her daughter so that she is freed from resentment at its victim.

By knowing that her mother's need is admiration, Mrs. P. should be able to help her to see how mistaken is her method of getting it. We are not admired for insulting other people.

Indeed, in this situation, I can imagine a really understanding daughter saying to her mother, "Until you realize how you are hurting yourself by criticizing Father before the children, I am going to protect you."

To be able to say this will require not only understanding of her mother's tragic dependence, but compassion for it, too.

As our parents age, they often expose to us needs which they have successfully disguised from us all our lives.

The mother whom we have trusted as self-reliant gradually reveals herself as more dependent than the father whom we have taken for granted.

The father whose every word has been tremblingly obeyed shows himself to us as he's always been—helpless without the support of business success and employes' flattery.

It shocks us. We feel cheated and resentful. Then as we come to understand, we put away our childish expectations of the human being who begot us.

And we do the best we can with the undisciplined hungers of hearts that have grown too tired to pretend any more.

GOP Has Surplus

Washington, Nov. 1 (AP)—Official reports on campaign finances show that the Republican national committee went into the final lap of the congressional campaign with a surplus of funds while its Democratic counterpart operated in the red. In a report to the House, the GOP organization said Saturday that up to Oct. 15 it had collected $1,356,216 and spent $1,214,763. A separate report from the Democratic committee showed collections of $960,134 and spending of $1,031,669.

Batista Is Unopposed

Havana, Cuba, Nov. 1 (AP)—Strong man Fulgencio Batista ran unopposed in Cuba's presidential elections today. Opposition candidate Ramon Grau San Martin withdrew last night and urged Cubans to stay away from the polls. Grau quit the race after the Superior Electoral Tribunal turned down his request for a delay of 8 or 10 days in today's balloting. The 72-year-old former president denounced the elections as a "farce."

Father Takes Triplets

Adelaide, Australia, Nov. 1 (AP)—David Crolla took possession today of the triplet sons his estranged 18-year-old wife tried to put up for adoption. Crolla, 21, took the seven-week-old babies from a maternity hospital to the two-bedroom house he shares with his parents. Asserting he would never let the children go, he said his mother will look after them. Crolla's wife, Betty, had refused to see the babies after they were born, saying if she saw them it might weaken her resolve to have them adopted.

Good Taste Today

By EMILY POST

(Author of Etiquette, Children At People etc.)

WHEN ACQUAINTANCE CALLS TOO FREQUENTLY

A reader asks: "How can one tactfully tell an acquaintance that she is calling too frequently? My husband's hobby is golf. We have a very beautiful course near our house and my husband spends a good deal of his free time there. It is his only means of recreation. He plays with a young man from his office who lives in a nearby city. Because of their mutual interest in golf they are very congenial and like playing together. However, every time the young man drives over for a game, his wife comes along and stays with me while they play. This woman and I have nothing in common, and while I do like her a little of her goes a long way. Furthermore, I could use the time my husband is out to good advantage by catching up on my household chores. I do not wish to hurt her but I am being bored to tears. Can you advise me?

My only advice is to continue with your household chores and say, "Excuse me I have to iron, or clean this room today," or whatever it is. If she doesn't enjoy watching you she won't come back as often; and if she doesn't mind, you'll get your work done.

'Glad to Have Met You'

Dear Mrs. Post: When I visited a relative lately I met one of her neighbors—a man. He spent an hour or so there one evening and then left. I said good-bye, of course, not the usual "glad to have met you," etc. I thought if anyone said it, he should! In fact, I never did think about either one of us saying it until she reminded me later that I hadn't been very polite not to say something nice about his coming.

Answer: I agree with you.

Hat at Evening Wedding

Dear Mrs. Post: What kind of hat does one wear to an 8 o'clock evening church wedding, when wearing formal evening dress? There will be a large reception at a hotel after the ceremony. Or on this occasion may one properly go into church without a hat?

Answer: Trimming of any kind which is intended as a substitute for a hat, would be all right.

The Mature Parent

Aging Parents Often Unveil Hungers Hidden for Years

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Mrs. F.'s parents have been unhappily married. Her working mother has been "head of the family," her father the dependent. Now that retirement has reduced her mother's income, she has suddenly become a bitter woman.

She complains constantly about the past cruelties of her life. Often, she gets so involved in them that she insults her husband before his grandchildren.

Mrs. F. writes: "The children are beginning to dislike her. How can I stop her?"

What is her mother using these complaints to say to Mrs. F.? I think she may be saying:

"Please admire me. Admiration is my life. Up to now I've been able to get it by supporting your father. By contrasting his weakness with my strength, I have got people to think, 'My, what a fine woman.'

"But now my reduced income has reduced my supply of admiration. I am starving for it. So I have to come to your house every day to remind you of my past strength by reminding you of the cruelties it survived. I am reduced to pleading with you for admiration by complaining."

Such a confession of dependence should move her daughter so that she is freed from resentment at its victim.

By knowing that her mother's need is admiration, Mrs. P. should be able to help her to see how mistaken is her method of getting it. We are not admired for insulting other people.

Indeed, in this situation, I can imagine a really understanding daughter saying to her mother, "Until you realize how you are hurting yourself by criticizing Father before the children, I am going to protect you."

To be able to say this will require not only understanding of her mother's tragic dependence, but compassion for it, too.

As our parents age, they often expose to us needs which they have successfully disguised from us all our lives.

The mother whom we have trusted as self-reliant gradually reveals herself as more dependent than the father whom we have taken for granted.

The father whose every word has been tremblingly obeyed shows himself to us as he's always been—helpless without the support of business success and employes' flattery.

It shocks us. We feel cheated and resentful. Then as we come to understand, we put away our childish expectations of the human being who begot us.

And we do the best we can with the undisciplined hungers of hearts that have grown too tired to pretend any more.

GOP Has Surplus

Washington, Nov. 1 (AP)—Official reports on campaign finances show that the Republican national committee went into the final lap of the congressional campaign with a surplus of funds while its Democratic counterpart operated in the red. In a report to the House, the GOP organization said Saturday that up to Oct. 15 it had collected $1,356,216 and spent $1,214,763. A separate report from the Democratic committee showed collections of $960,134 and spending of $1,031,669.

Batista Is Unopposed

Havana, Cuba, Nov. 1 (AP)—Strong man Fulgencio Batista ran unopposed in Cuba's presidential elections today. Opposition candidate Ramon Grau San Martin withdrew last night and urged Cubans to stay away from the polls. Grau quit the race after the Superior Electoral Tribunal turned down his request for a delay of 8 or 10 days in today's balloting. The 72-year-old former president denounced the elections as a "farce."

Father Takes Triplets

Adelaide, Australia, Nov. 1 (AP)—David Crolla took possession today of the triplet sons his estranged 18-year-old wife tried to put up for adoption. Crolla, 21, took the seven-week-old babies from a maternity hospital to the two-bedroom house he shares with his parents. Asserting he would never let the children go, he said his mother will look after them. Crolla's wife, Betty, had refused to see the babies after they were born, saying if she saw them it might weaken her resolve to have them adopted.

Good Taste Today

WHEN ACQUAINTANCE CALLS TOO FREQUENTLY

A reader asks: "How can one tactfully tell an acquaintance that she is calling too frequently? My husband's hobby is golf. We have a very beautiful course near our house and my husband spends a good deal of his free time there. It is his only means of recreation. He plays with a young man from his office who lives in a nearby city. Because of their mutual interest in golf they are very congenial and like playing together. However, every time the young man drives over for a game, his wife comes along and stays with me while they play. This woman and I have nothing in common, and while I do like her a little of her goes a long way. Furthermore, I could use the time my husband is out to good advantage by catching up on my household chores. I do not wish to hurt her but I am being bored to tears. Can you advise me?

My only advice is to continue with your household chores and say, "Excuse me I have to iron, or clean this room today," or whatever it is. If she doesn't enjoy watching you she won't come back as often; and if she doesn't mind, you'll get your work done.

'Glad to Have Met You'

Dear Mrs. Post: When I visited a relative lately I met one of her neighbors—a man. He spent an hour or so there one evening and then left. I said good-bye, of course, not the usual "glad to have met you," etc. I thought if anyone said it, he should! In fact, I never did think about either one of us saying it until she reminded me later that I hadn't been very polite not to say something nice about his coming.

Answer: I agree with you.

Hat at Evening Wedding

Dear Mrs. Post: What kind of hat does one wear to an 8 o'clock evening church wedding, when wearing formal evening dress? There will be a large reception at a hotel after the ceremony. Or on this occasion may one properly go into church without a hat?

Answer: Trimming of any kind which is intended as a substitute for a hat, would be all right.

A COUPLE QUICKIES: Roger Billings, last season's KHS quarterback is calling the signals for undefeated Worcester Tech . . . Bill Engle, All-DUSO tackle, is on the freshman squad at Middlebury College . . . and Paul Giannuzzi is playing freshman football at Springfield College.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

No wonder South Carolina football has gotten a lift this season. The blonde cheerleader on the right is Miss South Carolina, who finished third in the Miss America contest . . . Louis "Chic" Provenzano of the Hofbrau was setting up drinks the other night celebrating a 73 on the links, not bad for a first year swinger. Chic, Lou Smith and Dr. Saul Goldtarb had just finished clobbering George Svirsky, Dr. John Olivet and Dr. Habeeb Maroon, 11-up, in a three-man minnie-aggie duel. A few of the reasons for Harold Broskie's horrendous 395 series at Newburgh—12 misses. Johnny Ferraro's 139 in the Major should bring comfort to the poor 'uns of this bowling business. Lou Little cries that there's no such thing as an upset in football. So, asks, Murray Olderman, has Columbia ever won a game that wasn't an upset? Joe Hoffman launched a golf comeback with a snappy 45 at Woodstock Thursday. And got plenty of inspiration as Billy Waterous toured in 36.

• Of Men and Mice:

Onteora Central may forego the proposed 11-man West Shore Football League next season in favor of six-man football. Since the Giants-Browns rivalry started, the Browns twice foiled Giant pennant bids. In 1950, after losing two regular season games to New York, the Browns won the celebrated 8-3 playoff on the ice at Cleveland. In 1951, the Giants lost only two games, both to the Browns, who took the title. Add silly talk: Mickey Kahr's threat to retire from the bowling game . . . Jake Senor made good his threat to become the first member of the East Kingston Rod and Gun Club to bag a bird this season. And it wound up in Jake's first rate clam chowder. Secretary Francis Costa of the East Kingston club is warning all members to please not mistake Sparky Greco for a bear when the season opens Nov. 15.

• On Throwing the Book:

Out in Port Clinton, Ohio, heart of some of the best duck hunting in the country, the fish and game authorities don't fool around with game violators.

Illegal possession of 11 pheasants recently cost a 47-year-old Dayton man a total of $1,485.80 in municipal court. It was the heaviest assessment in the history of the Port Clinton court, Judge Don Wargowsky said.

The fines and costs were levied against Joseph P. Mantavon after he pleaded guilty to these four charges: 1. possession of 11 wild game birds out of season; fined $100 for each of the six male birds; $150 for each of three female birds; and $125 for each of two whose sex could not be determined; 2. possession of more than four birds, fined $25; 3. fined $10 for each of 11 birds for destroying exterior sex identity, total $110; 4. fined $20 and costs for speeding.

Montavon was arrested by State Highway Patrolman John Milstead for speeding. Game Protector William Farley told Judge Wargowsky that a search of Montavon's car uncovered the pheasants. The game protector said the birds had been dressed and carefully cut.

Dr. Eugene Dustman, who is in charge of wildlife research at Ohio State University, told Judge Wargowsky that the birds had been so carefully dressed it was not possible to establish the sex of two of the 11. Six were male birds and three female, Dr. Dustman testified.

Judge Wargowsky wasn't fooled. He just threw the book at the offender.

Grief Stricken Hawk Winger Gets 1-1 Tie for Club

(By The Associated Press)

Billy Mosienko was back home in Winnipeg today attending the funeral of his brother.

The veteran Chicago Black Hawks' right winger learned the news of his brother's death Saturday night. He had the choice of leaving immediately or waiting until after Chicago's game against the Rangers in New York last night.

Mosienko chose to stay. Because of his decision, the Black Hawks got a 1-1 tie with the Rangers instead of a 1-0 defeat. For it was a third period goal by the grief stricken star that earned the National Hockey League's cellar-dwellers the tie.

With Chicago trailing 1-0 on Larry Popein's goal at 1:44 in the final period, Mosienko stole the puck from a Ranger near the boards, swooped out toward center ice and slammed a 30-footer past the surprised Lorne Worsely.

The tie moved Chicago up to within one point of the fifth place Boston Bruins. Chicago now has won one and tied two in eight starts, all four points gained on the road. The deadlock left the Rangers still in third place, a point behind second place Detroit.

No other teams were scheduled.

Fistic Preview of Week

By JACK HAND

New York, Nov. 1 (AP)—Frankie Ryff, unbeaten New York lightweight with 14 straight victories, boxes the veteran Henry Davis of Los Angeles tonight at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway where another young hopeful, featherweight Carmelo Costa, suffered his first defeat a week ago.

Ryff was to have boxed a return bout with Ralph Dupas, the New Orleans schoolboy, at New Orleans but the match ran into TV and managerial complications. Instead Dupas meets Carlos Chavez in New Orleans while Ryff fights in Brooklyn. Ryff outpointed Dupas for his most important victory, Sept. 13. The Ryff-Davis bout will be on TV (ABC).

MOSES WARD of Detroit faces Bobby Jones of Oakland, Calif. In the 10-round feature at New York's St. Nicholas Arena (Dumont). Ward, stopped by George Johnson in April, has responded to the schooling of trainer Freddy Fierro to whip Yolande Pompey, Tuzo Portuguez and Billy Kilgore in his last three starts.

Jones' record is spotty, 38-21-8 for 67 bouts. He did upset Gil Turner in March and lost a questionable decision to Joey Giardello June 11.

THE ONLY champion to work this week is Bobo Olson who unlimbers Wednesday at Richmond, Calif., against Garth Panter of Salt Lake City without placing his middlewight title on the line.

The Olson-Panter match (CBS-TV) is a return go. They fought at Butte, Mont., March 16, 1953 with Olson winning. That was before Bobo won the crown. The champ's next defense is set for Dec. 15 against Giardello at San Francisco.

TONY DeMARCO, one of the best looking young fighters to come out of Boston in many years, tops the Saturday night show (ABC-TV) from the Boston Arena against Pat Manzi of Syracuse, N. Y., a rugged club fighter.

The Boston youngster has a 38-4 record. He stopped George Araujo and Chris Christensen in his most recent outings.

JIMMY SLADE, idle since he exploded the Hurricane Jackson myth April 26, gives away pounds and reach to big Bob Baker, hulking Pittsburgh heavyweight, in their Friday match at the Philadelphia Arena (NBC-radio, TV).

The last time Slade went to work he weighed 181½. Baker weighed 213 when he upset Coley Wallace at Cleveland during the World Series, Oct. 1.

Although Lulu Perez's scheduled Nov. 15 bout with Danny Joe Perez (no relation) was postponed because of a reported hand injury to Lulu Perez, Lulu has signed to box the Cuban featherweight champ, Ciro Morasen, at Havana Dec. 22. . . . The Nov. 19 Garden pairing of Floyd Patterson and Willie Troy already has the boys talking.

Each team in the American Hockey League plays 64 games, equally divided home and away.

BENOFSKY BURST off tackle for a 28-yard touchdown jaunt early in the first period for NFA, after Mickey Burkowski had returned a punt from the Port 34 to the PJ 28. Burkowski's try for extra point failed.

NFA's second TD drive in the second quarter covered 34 yards, with Benosky carrying to the PJ 21 on the first play in the sequence. Six plays later Bill Becker bolted over from the 2 and Burkowski place kicked the extra point to give NFA a 13-0 lead at the half.

Bob Freytag, Port's all-DUSO backfield candidate, got off runs of 18 and 19 yards to spearhead a 73-yard Red and Black touch down march in the fourth quarter. The payoff was a 19-yard pass from Dick Pencek to Dick Beams.

Highly Unusual Football Story These Mad Days

O'Doul Quits At San Diego

San Diego, Calif., Oct. 31 (AP)—The San Diego Pacific Coast League baseball club today announced Frank "Lefty" O'Doul, 57, would not return next year as manager.

Biss Starr, club president, said O'Doul was leaving the club which he led to its first outright league pennant this year because he "has other things in mind."

O'Doul, who is in San Francisco, is reported to have been considering an offer to manage the Oakland club of the Coast League. He has also been mentioned as possible manager of the Philadelphia Athletics.

A COUPLE QUICKIES: Roger Billings, last season's KHS quarterback is calling the signals for undefeated Worcester Tech . . . Bill Engle, All-DUSO tackle, is on the freshman squad at Middlebury College . . . and Paul Giannuzzi is playing freshman football at Springfield College.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

No wonder South Carolina football has gotten a lift this season. The blonde cheerleader on the right is Miss South Carolina, who finished third in the Miss America contest . . . Louis "Chic" Provenzano of the Hofbrau was setting up drinks the other night celebrating a 73 on the links, not bad for a first year swinger. Chic, Lou Smith and Dr. Saul Goldtarb had just finished clobbering George Svirsky, Dr. John Olivet and Dr. Habeeb Maroon, 11-up, in a three-man minnie-aggie duel. A few of the reasons for Harold Broskie's horrendous 395 series at Newburgh—12 misses. Johnny Ferraro's 139 in the Major should bring comfort to the poor 'uns of this bowling business. Lou Little cries that there's no such thing as an upset in football. So, asks, Murray Olderman, has Columbia ever won a game that wasn't an upset? Joe Hoffman launched a golf comeback with a snappy 45 at Woodstock Thursday. And got plenty of inspiration as Billy Waterous toured in 36.

• Of Men and Mice:

Onteora Central may forego the proposed 11-man West Shore Football League next season in favor of six-man football. Since the Giants-Browns rivalry started, the Browns twice foiled Giant pennant bids. In 1950, after losing two regular season games to New York, the Browns won the celebrated 8-3 playoff on the ice at Cleveland. In 1951, the Giants lost only two games, both to the Browns, who took the title. Add silly talk: Mickey Kahr's threat to retire from the bowling game . . . Jake Senor made good his threat to become the first member of the East Kingston Rod and Gun Club to bag a bird this season. And it wound up in Jake's first rate clam chowder. Secretary Francis Costa of the East Kingston club is warning all members to please not mistake Sparky Greco for a bear when the season opens Nov. 15.

It's not George Blanda's fault that the Chicago Bears aren't leading the National Football League's western division today.

The Bears, one time NFL rulers, are in third place with a mediocre 3-3 record but it would have been a lot worse without Blanda.

The rugged 197-pound pass and kick expert from Kentucky University, enjoying his greatest of six seasons with the Bears, appears on his way to win the league's all-star quarterback berth.

It was Blanda pitching and Harlon Hill catching yesterday as the Bears defeated the previously unbeated San Francisco Forty-niners 31-27 in one of the season's biggest upsets.

HILL, A ROOKIE end from Alabama State Teachers College, caught four touchdown passes, the last one with only 33 seconds remaining, to knock the 49ers into a first place tie with Detroit in the division.

The 49ers also suffered a damaging blow when Hugh McElhenny, their best running back, incurred a shoulder separation which will put him out for the season.

Detroit also had to come from behind, scoring a touchdown in the last quarter to overcome a 24-20 deficit and nip the Los Angeles Rams 27-24. Detroit now has a 4-1 record while Frisco has the same won-lost mark plus a tie with Los Angeles.

The eastern division is even more knotted with three teams —Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and New York—possessing 4-2 records. Cleveland is a half step behind with 3-2.

All three leaders bowed over the weekend as Cleveland walloped the Giants 24-14, the Chicago Cardinals surprised the Steelers 17-14 and Green Bay routed the Eagles 37-14 on Saturday night.

WASHINGTON joined the Cardinals in winning its first game of the season, shading Baltimore's Colts 24-21.

Blanda fired three touchdown passes, kicked a 15-yard field goal and made all four conversions—including his 102nd straight yesterday. A week earlier he almost single handedly beat the Rams by pitching four of the Bears' five touchdowns, booting a 31-yard field goal and converting five times in Los Angeles' victory over Chicago.

Otto Graham sneaked over for two touchdowns and passed to Dante Lavelli for the third to lead the Browns to their triumph over New York.

Ted Kluszewski is the first member of the Cincinnati Redlegs to lead the major leagues in home runs since Fred Odwell in 1905. Odwell hit nine that year.

Only one team in American League history won as many as 90 games and finished fourth. Cleveland in 1950 won 92 but finished behind New York, Detroit and Boston.

Betsy Rawls Cops Third Texas Open

Fort Worth, Nov. 1 (AP)—Betsy Rawls sank a 6-foot putt for a birdie here yesterday to become the third champion in history to win the women's Texas Open golf tournament two successive years.

The Sparansburg, N. C., veteran defeated Betty Hicks of Manhattan, Calif., 1 up for her victory after trailing most of the match.

Her comeback brought her an advantage on the 34th hole when she shot a birdie four. But Miss Hicks evened it on the 35th with a birdie and sent the match deadlocked to the final hole.

Both were one over par for the 36 holes.

Basketball practice doesn't start at Kingston High until Thursday. But a couple of Maroon 'old pros' dominated Saturday's YMCA League competition with the kind of shooting that could go a long way toward restoring KHS to the top of the DUSO heap this season.

All-DUSO Skip Brodhead, a 1953-54 selection for the New York state All-American, unloaded 31 points as Lou's Machine Shop trampled Murray's, 74-57.

BRODHEAD bucketed 13 fields and five singletons in Lou's romp over Murray's. The all-KHS roster led 67-41 before a fourth period letdown.

Tom Fleming, a varsity prospect, hit 16 points, Bob Mains fired 13 and Ray Lawrence had 11. Don Madison led the losers with 14; Ken Lowe had 12 and Jay Parker 11.

JOHN GODWIN unloaded 29 points in the Angels' 84-59 crusher over Valley Gardens with one less basket than Brodhead. Big Bill Kleine and Champ Holstein hit in double figures for the winners with 13 and 12 respectively.

Brian Lawrence hit 25 and Werner Wustrau had 17 for Garden tops.

Weekend of Nightmares

Spotlights Upset Dairy; RecsSweepOverRapp's

If Jones Dairy loses the Hudson Valley bowling title by a game or two, come next April 17, They might look back with terrible misgivings on that awful night of Saturday, Oct. 30, 1954.

That was the night the unheralded Spotlight Grill of Poughkeepsie flattened them, 2 to 1, in the HVBL's top upset of the season.

This all happened on alleys 7 and 8 at the Bowlodrome, mind you. And the Spotlight achieved this historic upset with a meagre 2779 series. Obviously, the Dairymen had less . . . 2703 to be exact.

IT WAS A ROUGH weekend for two local contenders. Dutchess Recreation exploded Rapp's Express's titular aspirations with a 3-0 crusher at Poughkeepsie. The Recs, struggling to get back on top, cracked 2984.

Forst Packing, meanwhile picked up a couple of vital wins at Ellenville Electrics and Elstons jolted the Newburgh Johnsons, 2-1 at the Bowlodrome.

Fred Johnson, a pinboy at the now defunct Colonial alleys on North Front street, sparked Spotlight Grill's undoing of Jones Dairy with a 602 slam. Harold Broskie was Joness' top man with 598.

JIM MILLET'S 248-629 failed to save the Johnsons against Elstons, who pulled close games out of the fire in the first and third sets. Tom Carlino posted 220-596 and Bill Murray had 202-569 and Fred Rice 221-591 for the Sportsmen.

Rapp's fizzled to a 2630 against Dutchess Rec, failing to hit a 900 set while the 1953-54 champions reeled off 1033, 944 and 1007.

Phil Versace anchored with 222-223-200-645; Jake Charter had 209-605 and Dick Rhea 242-600.

Whitey Crispell's 203-592 and George Shufeldt's 210-584 sparked the Packer triumph at Ellenville. Ed Church hit 573 for the Electrics.

OUT OF DOORS with Field & Stream

BY AL McCLANE
(Fishing Editor)

Probably the most important news in fishing tackle this year was the arrival of fibreglass reels.

The Shakespeare Company, who produced and marketed the first glass rods, unveiled a number of salt water and heavy duty fresh water bait casting reels which might well revolutionize the entire reel industry.

Two big advantages are apparent in glass reels—no more corrosion or rusting, and no more busted spools from the pressure of monolfilament line. It's only a matter of time before manufacturers use fibreglass in salt-water fly and spinning reels.

SWIVELS ARE the cheapest item of a casting outfit, yet the swivel, which prevents your line from twisting and serves as a connection to your lure is just as important as reel or rod when spinning.

If a spinning line gets twisted, casting becomes impossible. If you are using a swivel when your lines shows the slightest twist, cut the swivel off and tie on a new one.

Sometimes a swivel will stop working because dirt, moss, or grime has stuck to the working parts but often, slight imperfections in the wire or unseen corrosion causes the malfunction.

SPEAKING OF spinning tackle maint nance, be especially careful of the pick-up mechanism which gets more wear than any other part of your reel. Sometimes the roller and bail arm will be pinned, but usually they are joined with screw and nut which tend to loosen.

Beaten Teams Harrass Clubs In the Big 10

By ED WILKS
(The Associated Press)

A great deal of prestige is connected with being listed among the nation's top ten teams in college football, but the only squads who regard you with respect are the ones you've already licked.

The outfits you still must play get all fired up as though you've said something unkind about their grandmothers.

Look at what happened to most of the elite last weekend:

West Virginia, ranked No. 7, was dumped off its unbeaten streak by Pittsburgh, admittedly an improving team, but one that had lost three of five.

Wisconsin, listed No. 8 with a 4-1 record, was socked by Iowa, an ex-top tenner with a 3-2 record, 13-7.

OHIO STATE, given the No. 1 position in the nation, had all it could do to dispose of Northwestern 14-7. The Wildcats had a 1-5 showing up 'til Saturday.

Oklahoma, No. 2, had to scramble to beat Colorado 13-6. The Buffs, with a so-so 4-2 record, had been pointing for Oklahoma since last season and managed to hold a 6-0 lead into the final period.

Arkansas, No. 4, had plenty of notice Texas A & M was out for an upset and had to scrap for a 14-7 victory, with both TDs set up by Aggie fumbles.

Army, No. 5, thought it had a breeze against twice beaten Virginia, but barely made it, 21-20.

NOTRE DAME, No. 6, was busy all afternoon restraining Navy 6-0.

With those ordeals over, another round of ambitious foes awaits this weekend.

Ohio State, Army and Arkansas would appear to have drawn the toughest among opponents.

The Buckeyes (6-0) have to put up with those pugnacious Pitt Panthers, an outfit that now has won three in a row after dropping its first three games. If Ohio State is deep in thought about its probably Big Ten title and the Rose Bowl bid, it could be a very long Saturday afternoon for the Bucks.

Army next opposes Yale, a 5-0-1 team that insists the Cadets, with their 5-1 record, aren't the best in the east.

Still unbeaten Arkansas (6-0) has another of its weekly "tests" ahead in Rice. The Razorbacks have the upper hand in the Southwest Conference—and the race for the Cotton Bowl—but Rice's Dick Moegle looks to be the best back they've faced.

An embarrassing weekend might also be in store for Purdue, the No. 9 team that handled Illinois with ease, 28-14, last Saturday. The Boilermakers face Iowa, apparently now turned spoiler after being knocked out of the Big Ten race.

Bears' Blanda Wrecks Unbeaten 49ers, 31-27

Weekend of Nightmares

Spotlights Upset Dairy; RecsSweepOverRapp's

If Jones Dairy loses the Hudson Valley bowling title by a game or two, come next April 17, They might look back with terrible misgivings on that awful night of Saturday, Oct. 30, 1954.

That was the night the unheralded Spotlight Grill of Poughkeepsie flattened them, 2 to 1, in the HVBL's top upset of the season.

This all happened on alleys 7 and 8 at the Bowlodrome, mind you. And the Spotlight achieved this historic upset with a meagre 2779 series. Obviously, the Dairymen had less . . . 2703 to be exact.

IT WAS A ROUGH weekend for two local contenders. Dutchess Recreation exploded Rapp's Express's titular aspirations with a 3-0 crusher at Poughkeepsie. The Recs, struggling to get back on top, cracked 2984.

Forst Packing, meanwhile picked up a couple of vital wins at Ellenville Electrics and Elstons jolted the Newburgh Johnsons, 2-1 at the Bowlodrome.

Fred Johnson, a pinboy at the now defunct Colonial alleys on North Front street, sparked Spotlight Grill's undoing of Jones Dairy with a 602 slam. Harold Broskie was Joness' top man with 598.

JIM MILLET'S 248-629 failed to save the Johnsons against Elstons, who pulled close games out of the fire in the first and third sets. Tom Carlino posted 220-596 and Bill Murray had 202-569 and Fred Rice 221-591 for the Sportsmen.

Rapp's fizzled to a 2630 against Dutchess Rec, failing to hit a 900 set while the 1953-54 champions reeled off 1033, 944 and 1007.

Phil Versace anchored with 222-223-200-645; Jake Charter had 209-605 and Dick Rhea 242-600.

Whitey Crispell's 203-592 and George Shufeldt's 210-584 sparked the Packer triumph at Ellenville. Ed Church hit 573 for the Electrics.

OUT OF DOORS with Field & Stream

BY AL McCLANE
(Fishing Editor)

Probably the most important news in fishing tackle this year was the arrival of fibreglass reels.

The Shakespeare Company, who produced and marketed the first glass rods, unveiled a number of salt water and heavy duty fresh water bait casting reels which might well revolutionize the entire reel industry.

Two big advantages are apparent in glass reels—no more corrosion or rusting, and no more busted spools from the pressure of monolfilament line. It's only a matter of time before manufacturers use fibreglass in salt-water fly and spinning reels.

SWIVELS ARE the cheapest item of a casting outfit, yet the swivel, which prevents your line from twisting and serves as a connection to your lure is just as important as reel or rod when spinning.

If a spinning line gets twisted, casting becomes impossible. If you are using a swivel when your lines shows the slightest twist, cut the swivel off and tie on a new one.

Sometimes a swivel will stop working because dirt, moss, or grime has stuck to the working parts but often, slight imperfections in the wire or unseen corrosion causes the malfunction.

SPEAKING OF spinning tackle maint nance, be especially careful of the pick-up mechanism which gets more wear than any other part of your reel. Sometimes the roller and bail arm will be pinned, but usually they are joined with screw and nut which tend to loosen.

Beaten Teams Harrass Clubs In the Big 10

By ED WILKS
(The Associated Press)

A great deal of prestige is connected with being listed among the nation's top ten teams in college football, but the only squads who regard you with respect are the ones you've already licked.

The outfits you still must play get all fired up as though you've said something unkind about their grandmothers.

Look at what happened to most of the elite last weekend:

West Virginia, ranked No. 7, was dumped off its unbeaten streak by Pittsburgh, admittedly an improving team, but one that had lost three of five.

Wisconsin, listed No. 8 with a 4-1 record, was socked by Iowa, an ex-top tenner with a 3-2 record, 13-7.

OHIO STATE, given the No. 1 position in the nation, had all it could do to dispose of Northwestern 14-7. The Wildcats had a 1-5 showing up 'til Saturday.

Oklahoma, No. 2, had to scramble to beat Colorado 13-6. The Buffs, with a so-so 4-2 record, had been pointing for Oklahoma since last season and managed to hold a 6-0 lead into the final period.

Arkansas, No. 4, had plenty of notice Texas A & M was out for an upset and had to scrap for a 14-7 victory, with both TDs set up by Aggie fumbles.

Army, No. 5, thought it had a breeze against twice beaten Virginia, but barely made it, 21-20.

NOTRE DAME, No. 6, was busy all afternoon restraining Navy 6-0.

With those ordeals over, another round of ambitious foes awaits this weekend.

Ohio State, Army and Arkansas would appear to have drawn the toughest among opponents.

The Buckeyes (6-0) have to put up with those pugnacious Pitt Panthers, an outfit that now has won three in a row after dropping its first three games. If Ohio State is deep in thought about its probably Big Ten title and the Rose Bowl bid, it could be a very long Saturday afternoon for the Bucks.

Army next opposes Yale, a 5-0-1 team that insists the Cadets, with their 5-1 record, aren't the best in the east.

Still unbeaten Arkansas (6-0) has another of its weekly "tests" ahead in Rice. The Razorbacks have the upper hand in the Southwest Conference—and the race for the Cotton Bowl—but Rice's Dick Moegle looks to be the best back they've faced.

An embarrassing weekend might also be in store for Purdue, the No. 9 team that handled Illinois with ease, 28-14, last Saturday. The Boilermakers face Iowa, apparently now turned spoiler after being knocked out of the Big Ten race.

training cycle, the statement said.

The Third Army commander stressed that no injuries were suffered by the trainees.

Charges against Anderson include:

1. After a scuffle between two trainees and a permanent member of the company, he allegedly ordered a trainee, who carried a stick, to be bound by his ankles by a rope and suspended from a tree limb. Other trainees were forced to pull on the rope "thus suspending the trainee upside down." The officer then instructed the recruit to "beat the trunk of the tree if he wanted to beat anything."

2. Anderson forced two other trainees to take "sand baths" to "emphasize the necessity of frequent bathing." The recruits were forced to strip down to their shorts and socks and then were ordered to scrub themselves with a wash cloth dipped in sand and water. They were later ordered to climb a tree and repeatedly shout an obscene phrase.

3. Anderson ordered a trainee to do "push-ups and squat-jumps until he lay apparently exhausted on the ground." While the recruit lay prostrate, other trainees were forced to throw dirt over him.

Art Mooney Orchestra Booked for 18th Annual Ahavath Israel Ball November 24

Continuing his custom of bringing top-flight stars of stage, screen, radio and TV fame for his annual Thanksgiving Eve balls at municipal auditorium, Herman G. Rafalowsky, chairman of the Congregation Ahavath Israel committee, today announced that Art Mooney and his famous MGM recording orchestra, will be one of the features this year.

At the same time, Mr. Rafalowsky indicated that he will have the name of an outstanding vocalist ready for publication within a day or two.

"I KNOW THIS singer will absolutely jam pack the auditorium Wednesday, Nov. 24, for our 18th annual program," the genial chairman said. "Coupled with the appearance of the Art Mooney band, this celebrated vocalist is one of the biggest individual names ever to appear in Kingston," he added.

The appearance of the Mooney aggregation at the holiday eve bill marks another milestone for the local Broadway clothier who, in the past, has brought such name bands as Xavier Cugat, Claude Thornhill, Raymond Scott, Sammy Kaye, Johnny Long and a host of others to Kingston.

THE MOONEY BAND has been in the spotlight of the top U. S. orchestras since the waxing of I'm Looking Over a Four Leaf Clover a few years back. That hit won for him the top position in every type of music poll and elevated him into the most prominent position of the band world.

With his popularity engulfing the entire country, Mooney's disc of Mahzel was an immediate smash hit and sold more than a million records. Then came the successful Clover song which took the country by storm. Some of his other record successes include That's My Desire, the novelty Va-Sa-Pa, which means Go to Work and Bluebird of Happiness.

NOVELTY TUNES have long been one of the fortes of the Mooney band. Realizing that the discriminating public demands more than eight rhythmic bars in patterned sequence, Art has skillfully combined entertainment with dance music. Adding further to his versatility,

ART MOONEY

Mooney has done much in the way of choral and vocal presentations.

Mooney is currently injecting some of the old Glenn Miller trademarks into his music; the clarinet leading the sax section, the trumpets muted and thin, lending to dreamy and easy listening.

The Mooney aggregation has played all of the top spots throughout the country and always come away with new records. Some top appearances for the band have been at the Paramount, Capitol, Roxy and Strand Theatres in New York, Frank Dailey's Meadow Brook in New Jersey, the Hotel Ben Franklin in Philadelphia, the famous Glen Island Casino, long a landmark for Glenn Miller's orchestra; Nicky Blair's Carnival in New York, the Plladium in Hollywood and the Aragon in Chicago.

Featured vocalist with the Mooney band is Alan Foster.

President, Stevenson Appeal

indication of the effectiveness of either campaign, despite claims of widespread success. Telephone companies reported traffic increases in some areas.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL Chairman Leonard W. Hall has said the Eisenhower efforts would swing the election. Democrats in some areas said the presidential campaigning had hurt them. In other sections, they said it wasn't noticed particularly.

What was hurting the Democrats in some critical races, they conceded privately, was the charge that many of their candidates are left wing. Atty. Gen. Brownell said Saturday night that if Democrats win control of Congress, the new chairmen of committees which deal with corruption and communism would be a "new kind of 5 per center—they supported the President's program only 5 per cent of the time." He did not name them. Brownell said the "big reason" for having a GOP Congress is that "in this field of communism there is much to be done by our federal government."

Democrats remained confident they can count on support from the unemployed, those with reduced income and those who fear a depression.

EISENHOWER AND Republican campaigners generally have contended the country is enjoying its best non-war year but no GOP leader professed to know how effective this reply was.

As the campaign ended, the opposing camps hit a high note of bitterness.

Stevenson accused Eisenhower in a New York telecast of adopting material which "has been standard Communist propaganda for years . . . the President himself has affirmed the proposition that our prosperity has been achieved in the past only at the price of war and bloodshed."

Nixon, accusing Stevenson of making a "hysterical, scurrilous and vicious" attack on Eisenhower, said he planned a large-scale revision of his speech tonight.

NIXON SAID in Spokane, Wash., Saturday that the Democrats were never able to produce prosperity in peacetime, adding that "it can truly be stated that Truman-type policies meant either war or hard times for America."

Hall and his Democratic counterpart, National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell, had a final televised (CBS) debate yesterday. Hall contended that the GOP has brought the nation to a peacetime peak of prosperity with more than 62 million persons employed, and he added: "And we don't need a war to keep them at work." Mitchell said the administration is "so one-sided" in favor of business and industry that a Democratic Congress is essential to "represent all of the people."

The 11th hour spotlight swung on 11 Senate races where Senate control appeared likely to be decided.

In the 11 states with critical Senate races there were these late reports.

CALIFORNIA — Republican Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel favored over Democratic Rep. Samuel W. Horty; Democrats claim gain of four to six in House, but Republicans report upswing for their candidates.

COLORADO—Democrat John A. Carroll credited with lead, but Republican Gordon Allott coming up in final burst. Democrats might pick up a congressional seat.

DELAWARE — Democratic Sen. J. Allen Frear Jr. given edge, but Eisenhower's flying visit Friday believed to have helped Republican Rep. Herbert B. Warburton.

ILLINOIS—Edge given to Democratic Sen. Paul H. Douglas but backers of Republican Joseph T. Meek say he is closing fast.

KENTUCKY — Former Vice President Alben W. Barkley credited with slight edge for seat held by Republican Sen. John Sherman Cooper.

MICHIGAN—Republican Sen. Homer Ferguson reported to have strengthened his lead over Democrat Patrick V. McNamara.

MONTANA—Democratic Sen. James E. Murray seemingly holding small edge over Republican Rep. Wesley A. D'Ewart, but editor E. S. (Shorty) Dye of Helena Independent-Record said contest is "a toss-up that could go either way."

NEW JERSEY — Democratic Rep. Charles A. Howell favored to take over GOP seat sought by Republican Clifford P. Case.

OHIO — Republican Rep. George H. Bender given slightly better than even chance to take seat from Democratic Sen. Thomas A. Burke, but Burke reported closing gap.

OREGON—Democrat Richard L. Neuberger's lead reported declining rapidly in surge by Reblican Sen. Guy Cordon.

WYOMING—Former Democratic Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney still leading in battle for GOP seat, with Republican Rep. William Henry Harrison said to be closing in.

Gives Election Outlook

New York, Nov. 1 (AP)—The New York Times said today that sufficient Democratic gains to control the House, with a tight battle for the Senate, were indicated in a final weekend preelection survey of 47 states. A Washington story by W. H. Lawrence said: Times correspondents reported Democrats ahead in key races that would determine party control of the next Congress, but the margins in many states were perilously close and still subject to change.

Tip Blamed on Crank

Seattle, Nov. 1 (AP)—An anonymous telephone call, which said poisoned food had been delivered to Vice President Nixon's hotel room here Saturday night, appeared today to have been the work of a crank. Burt C. Cline, Secret Service agent, said "nothing has turned up so far" in laboratory tests of the food. "But there will be several hours more of testing before we can be certain," he added.

As Pegler Sees It

that the CIO and the AF of L would prevent strikes.

Eleanor Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins came out with menacing designs, only a few months before the fighting ended, to dragoon civilians, women as well as men, and scatter them all over the country, disrupting families, billeting strangers in private homes by order of evil bureaucrats such as Harold Ickes, without discrimination as to personal character, religion, race or any other factor which normally enters into the harmony of a household. Eleanor also thought it would be a good idea to compel a newly graduated physician to go where he was sent (possibly by the influence of some rival or political enemy of his family) and stay there.

Thus far, we have escaped the extreme horrors of this design hatched up in "interesting discussions" in the White House and tentatively announced in Eleanor's "column" and in the American magazine under Hopkins' name in an article ghosted by Jerome Beatty. But have we altogether escaped them, forever?

Wilson's chance remark indicates no such confidence.

War and the industries which support war are the base of the "economy" which Roosevelt and, later, Truman had to resort to. Walter Reuther and Philip Murray obligingly called long strikes over artificial issues soon after the military victory so that our steel industry and the industries dependent on it, including motors, would not too soon close the gap between the shortage of "consumer" goods and the assembly-line rate of production. Later, Truman, like Roosevelt, was up against it because of overproduction and made his Korean war as Roosevelt had contrived Pearl Harbor.

training cycle, the statement said.

The Third Army commander stressed that no injuries were suffered by the trainees.

Charges against Anderson include:

1. After a scuffle between two trainees and a permanent member of the company, he allegedly ordered a trainee, who carried a stick, to be bound by his ankles by a rope and suspended from a tree limb. Other trainees were forced to pull on the rope "thus suspending the trainee upside down." The officer then instructed the recruit to "beat the trunk of the tree if he wanted to beat anything."

2. Anderson forced two other trainees to take "sand baths" to "emphasize the necessity of frequent bathing." The recruits were forced to strip down to their shorts and socks and then were ordered to scrub themselves with a wash cloth dipped in sand and water. They were later ordered to climb a tree and repeatedly shout an obscene phrase.

3. Anderson ordered a trainee to do "push-ups and squat-jumps until he lay apparently exhausted on the ground." While the recruit lay prostrate, other trainees were forced to throw dirt over him.

Art Mooney Orchestra Booked for 18th Annual Ahavath Israel Ball November 24

Continuing his custom of bringing top-flight stars of stage, screen, radio and TV fame for his annual Thanksgiving Eve balls at municipal auditorium, Herman G. Rafalowsky, chairman of the Congregation Ahavath Israel committee, today announced that Art Mooney and his famous MGM recording orchestra, will be one of the features this year.

At the same time, Mr. Rafalowsky indicated that he will have the name of an outstanding vocalist ready for publication within a day or two.

"I KNOW THIS singer will absolutely jam pack the auditorium Wednesday, Nov. 24, for our 18th annual program," the genial chairman said. "Coupled with the appearance of the Art Mooney band, this celebrated vocalist is one of the biggest individual names ever to appear in Kingston," he added.

The appearance of the Mooney aggregation at the holiday eve bill marks another milestone for the local Broadway clothier who, in the past, has brought such name bands as Xavier Cugat, Claude Thornhill, Raymond Scott, Sammy Kaye, Johnny Long and a host of others to Kingston.

THE MOONEY BAND has been in the spotlight of the top U. S. orchestras since the waxing of I'm Looking Over a Four Leaf Clover a few years back. That hit won for him the top position in every type of music poll and elevated him into the most prominent position of the band world.

With his popularity engulfing the entire country, Mooney's disc of Mahzel was an immediate smash hit and sold more than a million records. Then came the successful Clover song which took the country by storm. Some of his other record successes include That's My Desire, the novelty Va-Sa-Pa, which means Go to Work and Bluebird of Happiness.

NOVELTY TUNES have long been one of the fortes of the Mooney band. Realizing that the discriminating public demands more than eight rhythmic bars in patterned sequence, Art has skillfully combined entertainment with dance music. Adding further to his versatility,

ART MOONEY

Mooney has done much in the way of choral and vocal presentations.

Mooney is currently injecting some of the old Glenn Miller trademarks into his music; the clarinet leading the sax section, the trumpets muted and thin, lending to dreamy and easy listening.

The Mooney aggregation has played all of the top spots throughout the country and always come away with new records. Some top appearances for the band have been at the Paramount, Capitol, Roxy and Strand Theatres in New York, Frank Dailey's Meadow Brook in New Jersey, the Hotel Ben Franklin in Philadelphia, the famous Glen Island Casino, long a landmark for Glenn Miller's orchestra; Nicky Blair's Carnival in New York, the Plladium in Hollywood and the Aragon in Chicago.

Featured vocalist with the Mooney band is Alan Foster.

President, Stevenson Appeal

indication of the effectiveness of either campaign, despite claims of widespread success. Telephone companies reported traffic increases in some areas.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL Chairman Leonard W. Hall has said the Eisenhower efforts would swing the election. Democrats in some areas said the presidential campaigning had hurt them. In other sections, they said it wasn't noticed particularly.

What was hurting the Democrats in some critical races, they conceded privately, was the charge that many of their candidates are left wing. Atty. Gen. Brownell said Saturday night that if Democrats win control of Congress, the new chairmen of committees which deal with corruption and communism would be a "new kind of 5 per center—they supported the President's program only 5 per cent of the time." He did not name them. Brownell said the "big reason" for having a GOP Congress is that "in this field of communism there is much to be done by our federal government."

Democrats remained confident they can count on support from the unemployed, those with reduced income and those who fear a depression.

EISENHOWER AND Republican campaigners generally have contended the country is enjoying its best non-war year but no GOP leader professed to know how effective this reply was.

As the campaign ended, the opposing camps hit a high note of bitterness.

Stevenson accused Eisenhower in a New York telecast of adopting material which "has been standard Communist propaganda for years . . . the President himself has affirmed the proposition that our prosperity has been achieved in the past only at the price of war and bloodshed."

Nixon, accusing Stevenson of making a "hysterical, scurrilous and vicious" attack on Eisenhower, said he planned a large-scale revision of his speech tonight.

NIXON SAID in Spokane, Wash., Saturday that the Democrats were never able to produce prosperity in peacetime, adding that "it can truly be stated that Truman-type policies meant either war or hard times for America."

Hall and his Democratic counterpart, National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell, had a final televised (CBS) debate yesterday. Hall contended that the GOP has brought the nation to a peacetime peak of prosperity with more than 62 million persons employed, and he added: "And we don't need a war to keep them at work." Mitchell said the administration is "so one-sided" in favor of business and industry that a Democratic Congress is essential to "represent all of the people."

The 11th hour spotlight swung on 11 Senate races where Senate control appeared likely to be decided.

In the 11 states with critical Senate races there were these late reports.

CALIFORNIA — Republican Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel favored over Democratic Rep. Samuel W. Horty; Democrats claim gain of four to six in House, but Republicans report upswing for their candidates.

COLORADO—Democrat John A. Carroll credited with lead, but Republican Gordon Allott coming up in final burst. Democrats might pick up a congressional seat.

DELAWARE — Democratic Sen. J. Allen Frear Jr. given edge, but Eisenhower's flying visit Friday believed to have helped Republican Rep. Herbert B. Warburton.

ILLINOIS—Edge given to Democratic Sen. Paul H. Douglas but backers of Republican Joseph T. Meek say he is closing fast.

KENTUCKY — Former Vice President Alben W. Barkley credited with slight edge for seat held by Republican Sen. John Sherman Cooper.

MICHIGAN—Republican Sen. Homer Ferguson reported to have strengthened his lead over Democrat Patrick V. McNamara.

MONTANA—Democratic Sen. James E. Murray seemingly holding small edge over Republican Rep. Wesley A. D'Ewart, but editor E. S. (Shorty) Dye of Helena Independent-Record said contest is "a toss-up that could go either way."

NEW JERSEY — Democratic Rep. Charles A. Howell favored to take over GOP seat sought by Republican Clifford P. Case.

OHIO — Republican Rep. George H. Bender given slightly better than even chance to take seat from Democratic Sen. Thomas A. Burke, but Burke reported closing gap.

OREGON—Democrat Richard L. Neuberger's lead reported declining rapidly in surge by Reblican Sen. Guy Cordon.

WYOMING—Former Democratic Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney still leading in battle for GOP seat, with Republican Rep. William Henry Harrison said to be closing in.

Gives Election Outlook

New York, Nov. 1 (AP)—The New York Times said today that sufficient Democratic gains to control the House, with a tight battle for the Senate, were indicated in a final weekend preelection survey of 47 states. A Washington story by W. H. Lawrence said: Times correspondents reported Democrats ahead in key races that would determine party control of the next Congress, but the margins in many states were perilously close and still subject to change.

Tip Blamed on Crank

Seattle, Nov. 1 (AP)—An anonymous telephone call, which said poisoned food had been delivered to Vice President Nixon's hotel room here Saturday night, appeared today to have been the work of a crank. Burt C. Cline, Secret Service agent, said "nothing has turned up so far" in laboratory tests of the food. "But there will be several hours more of testing before we can be certain," he added.

As Pegler Sees It

that the CIO and the AF of L would prevent strikes.

Eleanor Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins came out with menacing designs, only a few months before the fighting ended, to dragoon civilians, women as well as men, and scatter them all over the country, disrupting families, billeting strangers in private homes by order of evil bureaucrats such as Harold Ickes, without discrimination as to personal character, religion, race or any other factor which normally enters into the harmony of a household. Eleanor also thought it would be a good idea to compel a newly graduated physician to go where he was sent (possibly by the influence of some rival or political enemy of his family) and stay there.

Thus far, we have escaped the extreme horrors of this design hatched up in "interesting discussions" in the White House and tentatively announced in Eleanor's "column" and in the American magazine under Hopkins' name in an article ghosted by Jerome Beatty. But have we altogether escaped them, forever?

Wilson's chance remark indicates no such confidence.

War and the industries which support war are the base of the "economy" which Roosevelt and, later, Truman had to resort to. Walter Reuther and Philip Murray obligingly called long strikes over artificial issues soon after the military victory so that our steel industry and the industries dependent on it, including motors, would not too soon close the gap between the shortage of "consumer" goods and the assembly-line rate of production. Later, Truman, like Roosevelt, was up against it because of overproduction and made his Korean war as Roosevelt had contrived Pearl Harbor.

Gilligan Makes Statement

The following is a statement for the Kingston Freeman from Edmund Gilligan of Bearsville:

"A statement concerning the Onteora Central School District has been published over the names of Senator Arthur Wicks and Assemblyman Kenneth Wilson which is a gross and unfair attack on my personal integrity and upon the honesty of all the citizens, Republicans and Democrats alike, who worked so hard for years to establish the Onteora School. This joint statement is also a grave and dangerous attack on the reputation and efficiency of the Kingston Trust Company, which purchased the entire bond issue for the construction of the school.

"In an improper effort to deceive the voters of Ulster county, these candidates have declared that it is the intention of the City of New York to seek tax exemption for the Ashokan Reservoir and other city properties. They asserted that such an exemption would cause a large increase in the school taxes paid by the residents of the Onteora district.

"There is no foundation in fact for their statement. The only evidence they offer is a report that in 1937 an assemblyman introduced a tax exemption bill. They imply that this was done with the approval of the City of New York. This is not so. The bill was the work of an individual. His bill was ignored.

"I must point out that only three years ago, while the citizens of Woodstock (Shady, Willow, etc.) were debating the centralization question, Mr. Wilson and his counsel, John Egan, caused the circulation of a report that another such bill had been offered, this time by a Republican assemblyman from the Bronx. I had reason to believe that the bill was offered at the suggestion of the Wilson-Egan group in order to frighten the citizens and to rob their children of their right to good education in good circumstances. The citizens did not believe the Wilson-Egan assertion then. They will not believe it now. And we all remember—with justifiable bitterness—that such tactics delayed the construction of the school until inflation raised the cost of its materials by hundreds of thousands of dollars.

"I resent and deplore Mr. Wilson's action in bringing the precious cause of education into his campaign against Mr. Kellar. In protesting, I express the feelings of many other citizens who assured their neighbors that the City of New York would never attempt to seek tax exemption. We made that statement because the Corporation Counsel of New York formally advised us that the Ashokan Reservoir was a part of the administrative code of the city and that the city never had refused to pay its taxes and that it never would. The city never objected to the increase of taxes for the Onteora School and has not objected to the even heavier taxes in Gilboa. We were not telling a falsehood.

"To this, I may add the opinion of the highest Republican officials in Albany that the agreement for the construction of the reservoir is an inviolable legal transaction between the State of New York and the city. Hundreds of reservoirs have been built under the law of eminent domain. There is no method under law by which these ancient contracts may now be assailed.

"As for the Kingston Trust Company, which is regarded as one of the most competent banks in the state, it is plain that its directors would never have approved the purchase of over $2,000,000 in Onteora bonds unless they knew that the tax structure was sound and would remain unchanged. Such bond issues are carefully examined by several authorities before the issue is approved. If there was the remotest chance that the tax structure might be changed, such capable bankers would never have shown their approval in such a practical, substantial manner."

Gilligan Makes Statement

The following is a statement for the Kingston Freeman from Edmund Gilligan of Bearsville:

"A statement concerning the Onteora Central School District has been published over the names of Senator Arthur Wicks and Assemblyman Kenneth Wilson which is a gross and unfair attack on my personal integrity and upon the honesty of all the citizens, Republicans and Democrats alike, who worked so hard for years to establish the Onteora School. This joint statement is also a grave and dangerous attack on the reputation and efficiency of the Kingston Trust Company, which purchased the entire bond issue for the construction of the school.

"In an improper effort to deceive the voters of Ulster county, these candidates have declared that it is the intention of the City of New York to seek tax exemption for the Ashokan Reservoir and other city properties. They asserted that such an exemption would cause a large increase in the school taxes paid by the residents of the Onteora district.

"There is no foundation in fact for their statement. The only evidence they offer is a report that in 1937 an assemblyman introduced a tax exemption bill. They imply that this was done with the approval of the City of New York. This is not so. The bill was the work of an individual. His bill was ignored.

"I must point out that only three years ago, while the citizens of Woodstock (Shady, Willow, etc.) were debating the centralization question, Mr. Wilson and his counsel, John Egan, caused the circulation of a report that another such bill had been offered, this time by a Republican assemblyman from the Bronx. I had reason to believe that the bill was offered at the suggestion of the Wilson-Egan group in order to frighten the citizens and to rob their children of their right to good education in good circumstances. The citizens did not believe the Wilson-Egan assertion then. They will not believe it now. And we all remember—with justifiable bitterness—that such tactics delayed the construction of the school until inflation raised the cost of its materials by hundreds of thousands of dollars.

"I resent and deplore Mr. Wilson's action in bringing the precious cause of education into his campaign against Mr. Kellar. In protesting, I express the feelings of many other citizens who assured their neighbors that the City of New York would never attempt to seek tax exemption. We made that statement because the Corporation Counsel of New York formally advised us that the Ashokan Reservoir was a part of the administrative code of the city and that the city never had refused to pay its taxes and that it never would. The city never objected to the increase of taxes for the Onteora School and has not objected to the even heavier taxes in Gilboa. We were not telling a falsehood.

"To this, I may add the opinion of the highest Republican officials in Albany that the agreement for the construction of the reservoir is an inviolable legal transaction between the State of New York and the city. Hundreds of reservoirs have been built under the law of eminent domain. There is no method under law by which these ancient contracts may now be assailed.

"As for the Kingston Trust Company, which is regarded as one of the most competent banks in the state, it is plain that its directors would never have approved the purchase of over $2,000,000 in Onteora bonds unless they knew that the tax structure was sound and would remain unchanged. Such bond issues are carefully examined by several authorities before the issue is approved. If there was the remotest chance that the tax structure might be changed, such capable bankers would never have shown their approval in such a practical, substantial manner."

School News

ONTEORA CENTRAL—Members of the Onteora Central School Board have returned from Syracuse where they attended the 22nd annual convention of the New York State School Boards Association Oct. 24-26. They attended four major sessions with nearly 3,000 other school board members from every corner of New York state.

Attending from the local board were Mrs. Edna Bishop, Mrs. Marie Kleine, Fred D. Cure, Philip Gordon and Principal John H. Moehle.

The state association seeks to provide opportunities for school board members of all communities to get together and discuss common problems and to seek the best solutions possible. The annual convention has grown from 1,500 in 1947 to 2,975 in 1954.

Sad Sack Shadrach..
. . . thought life was too short to worry about the "future". "Live while you can" was his philosophy. Then one day he found himself unable to work, no money coming in and worst of all no money in the bank to fall back on. Then (too late) he thought, "I wish I had saved when I could."
Don't you be a "Too late thinker". Be smart — save while you can, when you can and where you can . . . we would like to have you save with us.
